By Associated Press.

Berlin, May 3.—An important Austrian victory in the eastern campaign is announced in the communication issued today from German army headquarters. The statement is made that the Austrians have pierced and broken the entire Russian front in West Galicia, from the neighborhood of the Hungarian frontier to the junction of the Vistula and the Dniester.

The report says the victory was won in the presence of Field Marshal Arthduke Frederick, with the troops in command of General von Mackensen.

"Such of the enemy as succeeded in escaping," the statement says, "are in hasty retreat toward the east closely pursued by the allied troops. The trophies of the victory cannot yet even be approximated."

The victory in Western Galicia, reported in the German official announcement, would appear to be of notable significance. From the junction of the Vistula and the Dniester rivers to the Hungarian frontier is about 60 miles.

After the surrender of the Austrian fortress of Przemyśl, in Galicia, the Russian forces, released from siege work in front of this position, began moving to the south in the direction of the Uzok pass and to the west in the direction of Cracow.

That a great battle was being fought in western Galicia was indicated in dispatches sent out from Berlin several days ago.

London, May 3.—No further official announcements have been made concerning fighting in the Dardanelles, but unofficial dispatches agree that the allies are progressing toward the narrows under cover of the warships, which are inflicting great damage on the Turkish defenses, including the reported total destruction of the town of Dardanelles.

A late Turkish official announcement claims a victory near Gaba Tepeli, in the Gallipoli peninsula, which is said to have resulted in the retreat of the colonial British troops to the shelter of their warships.

This account, however, does not agree with the British official report published Saturday, which declared that the British were resuming the offensive, after a stubborn resistance on the part of the Turks.

French troops are reported to have made another landing on the Asiatic side, and to be advancing rapidly.

London, May 3.—The sinking of three more vessels in the North Sea by German submarines, in their new campaign, is reported today.

The Swedish steamer Ellida went to the bottom in less than three minutes after she was torpedoed, but the 18 persons on board escaped.

Trawlers reaching Aberdeen report that two vessels in a fishing fleet, less than 50 miles of that port, were sunk yesterday.

It would appear as though the submarines ran amuck among the Aberdeen fishing fleet. In addition to sending two to the bottom, they chased three other trawlers for 20 miles. A patrol boat was then seen approaching, whereupon the submarines submerged.

It is believed in Rome that Austria and Germany have decided on another effort to prolong the negotiations between Italy and the central empires, in the hope of reaching a peaceful settlement of the territorial dispute.

not to postpone the assembling of Parliament on May 12, and it is thought in Rome that Parliament may assist the Cabinet in reaching a "decision which now appears to be almost inevitable."

Constantinople, May 3.—The Turkish War Department today gave out a statement saying: "The enemy has not succeeded in improving his position on the coast of the Gallipoli peninsula."

The statement claims that the French battleship Henri IV and the British battleship Vengeance have been damaged by shells from the guns of the Turkish forts, and it says that the Russian Black Sea fleet, after an hour's demonstration off the Bosphorus, retired rapidly in a northerly direction.

London, May 3.—It is reported that a Zeppelin airship is traveling in the direction of England from the Island of Vlieland, which is on the northern coast of the Netherlands. The airship passed over this island at 10 o'clock this morning.

London, May 3.—A German aeroplane, coming from the direction of Ostend, scouted over Dover and Folkestone at noon today. It was driven off by gun fire.

London, May 3.—There was given out today a British official statement which says: "May 1 the Germans attacked Hill No. 60, southeast of Ypres, and yesterday evening they attacked in the neighborhood of St. Julien."

"These attacks were both repulsed with heavy losses for the enemy, in spite of the fact that he again used poisonous gases, emitted from the trenches and from especially manufactured shells."

Washington, May 3.—Such advances as have come to the United States government through official and unofficial channels within the last few days indicate that Italy's preparations clearly tend to her participation in the war at an early date.

GREAT FIRE IN IRONTON

Portsmouth, May 3.—Fire, which swept an entire business block at Ironton this afternoon, gutted the Masonic Temple, opera house and a number of other buildings, doing damage estimated at from $150,000 to $200,000.

Portsmouth was called upon for aid, but before a special train, carrying the fire department, had been made up, word was received that the fire was under control.

CARMAN CASE BEGINS TODAY

Mineola, N. Y., May 3.—Mrs. Florence Conklin Carman was placed on trial in the Supreme Court today, for the second time, on the indictment charging her with the murder of Mrs. Lois D. Bailey, at Freeport, on the night of June 30 last.

The jury in the first trial disagreed, and Mrs. Carman has been at liberty under bond since then.

17,000,000 MEN ENGAGED IN WAR

Russia has 8,000,000 men in the field; Germany, 5,000,000; France, 3,000,000, and Great Britain 1,000,000; total, 17,000,000.

The soldiers are counted every day, but is one man had to count them the task would take him about 289 days, working day and night and taking no meal times.

If the whole of the troops could be crowded close together like strap hangers in a New York subway train, they would cover 1,170 acres of ground.

Could the men be stood each upon another's head they would make a column 17,615 miles high.

Standing shoulder to shoulder they would require a trench that would reach from New York to San Francisco and back again.

If each man wrote only a single word the result would provide a newspaper with ten pages of solid matter every day for six months.

If the fastest stenographer had to take down the names he would be 177 days getting his notes and nearly three years translating them.

WILSON IS AWAITING THE OFFICIAL REPORT

President Will Then Demand Full Damages for "Gulf Light" Cargo and Crew, it Is Believed, and Serious Complications Are Not Unlikely—Damages Will Exceed $1,000,000.

By Associated Press.

Washington, May 3.—President Wilson will reserve judgment on the torpedoing of the American steamer Gulf Light, until full official details are received.

The President inquired about the incident when he arrived from Williamstown, Mass., today, but was told that, so far as White House officials knew, no official word had come in.

On the face of the news dispatches officials admit that the attack on the ship is a serious matter, and they intend that a very thorough investigation shall be made, and that no hasty action should be taken.

New York, May 3.—The two Americans, in addition to Captain Gunther, who lost their lives when the American steamer Gulf Light was torpedoed off the Sicily Islands, were Charles C. Short, of Chicago, the wireless operator, and Eugene Chapin, of Port Arthur, Texas, a seaman, according to a cablegram received here today by the Gulf Refining Company, owners of the vessel.

The Gulf Light and its cargo, according to James Kennedy, marine superintendent of the company, were valued at $1,000,000.

A claim for the loss sustained, including damages for the lives lost, undoubtedly will be filed with the State Department, he thought. The cargo, Mr. Kennedy said, consisted of gasoline and oil.

Washington, May 3.—The first official report of the torpedoing of the American tank steamer Gulf Light reached the State Department today in an undated dispatch from Consul Stephens at Plymouth, England, saying the attack was made Saturday, but the vessel was still afloat and that patrol boats were attempting to tow her to the Scilly Islands.

Washington, May 3.—Secretary Bryan said that a thorough investigation would be made, but that before official reports were received the Washington government would make no comment.

CLAIMS MURPHY ASKED AID FROM REPUBLICANS

By Associated Press.
Syracuse, N. Y., May 3.—That William Barnes told him Charles F. Murphy, of Tammany Hall, had asked for help in 1911 to defeat a direct primaries bill in the state legislature, and that the then chairman of the Republican State Committee had answered he would refuse the aid asked, and had remarked he would not pull the Tammany Hall leaders' "chestnuts from the fire," was the sworn testimony given in the Supreme Court here today by Walter T. Arndt, formerly Albany correspondent of a New York newspaper.

Mr. Arndt was one of several witnesses who were placed upon the stand by the defense. Among them was Edward T. Platt, son of the late Thomas C. Platt, former United States senator and described in previous testimony as the "easy boss."

Mr. Platt produced several bundles of musty letters taken from the files kept by his father from 1899 to 1909.

ON TRIAL FOR KILLING BABE

By Associated Press.
Bellefontaine, O., May 3.—Mrs. Charles Bentz was placed on trial here today for the murder of a few weeks' old girl baby, which died in her home January 29, regarding the parenthood of which there is also a dispute.

Mrs. Bentz claims the child was her own, while the prosecution is supporting the claim of Mrs. Ruth Madden, that the child was hers, and was given to Mrs. Bentz, who had promised to find a home for it in Columbus.

The state will call medical experts, who are relied upon to testify that morphine was found in the child's stomach after death.

ROUMANIA READY TO JUMP INTO WAR.

AMERICAN VESSEL HIT BY TORPEDO

London, May 3.—The American oil tank steamer Gulfight was torpedoed off the Scilly Islands by a German submarine. The vessel was towed into Crow sound and beached.

A fog prevailed at the time. The crew was transhipped to a trawler. Captain Alfred Gunter died of heart failure. Two members of the crew jumped and it is believed were drowned. One of the crew was injured. The Gulfight was sighted in a sinking condition. Four trawlers went to the rescue and brought the survivors to harbor.

The captain of the Gulfight was Alfred Gunter of Bayonne, N. J. Mrs. Gunter received a telegram from the refining company notifying her that the vessel had been struck by a torpedo and that her husband was dead.

The Gulfight was a steel vessel of 3,202 tons net and was built at Camden, N. J., in 1914. She was owned by the Gulf Refining company. The vessel was 383 feet long, 51 feet beam and 30 feet deep. She was equipped with wireless telegraphy apparatus. The Gulfight sailed from Port Arthur, Tex., April 10, for Rouen, France.

Captain Gunter was fifty-two years old and one of the oldest captains in employ of the company. He was born in Germany. Captain Gunter was commander of the steamship Oklahoma, which went down in a gale in January, 1914, off the New Jersey coast.

WASHINGTON IS CONCERNED

Washington, May 3. — Authorities here viewed with grave concern reports that the American oil ship Gulfight had been torpedoed by a German submarine off the Scilly Islands, south of England.

It had been the fear of officials that the German "war zone" operations would result in the sinking of an American ship by a German submarine. It now appears that not only was the vessel torpedoed, but according to information received here three American lives were lost as a result. The case of Leon C. Thrasher, the American who lost his life in the torpedoing of the British ship Falaba by the Germans, was regarded as in part raising the issue most feared as source of complications by this government. The present case apparently constitutes a much more serious offense, in that it combines not only an attack upon the American flag and the destruction of American property on the high seas, but also involves the loss of American lives.

Officials here declined to comment on the dispatches from London because they have not yet been confirmed by any official messages reaching the state department. It was pointed out that the matters involved are of too great consequence for official utterances based on reports which may subsequently prove to be either inaccurate or incomplete.

The vigorous note sent to Germany by the United States with reference to the proposed war zone operations affords, of course, the basis for the position the United States government may be expected to take in the matter.

FRANK WALSH MAKES REPEY

Cincinnati, May 3.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., charges he gave out private correspondence and that he did not have to give it up. I want to say that no correspondence that has to do with the breakdown of government is private. Thus Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the United States commission on industrial relations, replied to Mr. Rockefeller's "defense of himself." "New York city," Mr. Walsh said, "is the center of the potential power of the land. In that city is one man, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., the richest man of all time, whose more than a thousand millions pervade all the fields of industry. The Colorado situation is controlled from 26 Broadway, New York, the office of the Standard Oil company. The history of this situation is a history of the exploitation of labor and of bloodshed."

ROOSEVELT AND OTHERS CENSURED

New York, May 3.—Raps at those who are attempting to make political capital out of the military unpreparedness of the United States are contained in a letter sent out to members of the American league to limit armaments, in which they are asked to direct public attention to such efforts. TO INDORSE THE RAPID TRANSIT BILL

Columbus, May 3.—Business and professional men, merchants and labor leaders to the number of several hundred will arrive in this city tomorrow to urge with Governor Willis and the speaker and leaders of the lower branch of the general assembly passage of the Bauer bill, which provides for Cincinnati a rapid transit system and an entrance to the city for nine interurban roads.

Many of the Republican members are displeased at the action of the Hamilton county members in joining with the Democrats to defeat the Andrews saloon license bill. Some of the members talked of refusing to pass the rapid transit bill ahead of the new license bill to be introduced in the senate, but waiting to see whether the Cincinnatians stand with the Republicans in carrying out the party pledge to decentralize or whether they play with the Democrats.

It is claimed that the farmers don't want to register as voters, not even once. That turns out to be why the Wickline election code has languished in committee for ten days since the senate passed it. The bill abolishes annual and quadrennial registration of city voters, substituting a permanent card system. In order to start the system, one more general registration must be had. The village and rural voters were included by the bill because of the need of a complete list of Ohio voters, to whom the secretary of state is required to mail copies of explanations of initiative and referendum proposals. This would require the farmer to register, and thereafter to sign his name to a card when handed a ballot on election day. To save the registration part of the bill from the farmers probably it will be amended to leave them out and to provide only for a card system of registration in cities.

GOVERNOR WILLIS ON HIGHWAY WORK

Columbus, May 3.—Governor Willis joined the good roads boosters and issued a statement, urging greater activities in highway work. He also cautioned public officials not to neglect the $100,000,000 investment in improved roads, and urged that these be kept in condition by repair and maintenance. Closer co-operation among federal, state, county and township officials in road work also was advocated by the chief executive.

DRUG FIENDS ARE FILLING N.Y. HOSPITALS

New York, May 3.—"An appalling situation, in which drug maniacs are allowed at large," is Ernest K. Coulter's characterization of the present state of affairs in New York city. Mr. Coulter was asked what ought to be done to handle the many cases of drug victims who, deprived of cocaine, heroin and other habit forming substances, are filling the city hospitals and prisons to the crippling point.

Worse than the strain on the hospitals and the overcrowding of the jails are the frequent deeds of violence in the effort to get drugs. In the last week there has hardly been a day when the newspapers have not chronicled attacks on shops or assaults on people by men crazed for the lack of drugs which they can no longer procure under the present law.

"I don't believe the people of the city realize the seriousness of the situation," said Mr. Coulter, who represented Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt in the long fight to suppress drug traffic in the city. "It must be understood that these men who rob, assault and slay to get moraine or some similar substance are insane. They are the most dangerous kind of lunatics when the craving comes over them. Now if the city can not deal with these people the lives of all of us are in constant peril. Drug victims come from every class of society. Aside from the danger of these roving lunatics in search of drugs, no one can be sure that his own brother won't get the habit. The introductions to drug using are too many and too deceptive for anyone to feel immune from danger. Private philanthropy is helpless before this problem; it is governmental."

New York, May 3.—Dr. Charles Goodman, a visiting surgeon at the Beth Israel hospital, sewed three stitches in the lining of a man's heart and saved the patient's life. The man was Israel Seiff, a peddler. He was brought into the hospital in a dying condition as a result of accidentally plunging a knife through his lungs and into his heart. In order to stay the hemorrhage the man's chest had to be opened, and for this purpose a special apparatus was used to prevent the collapse of the lungs. Dr. Goodman did the sewing up of the heart while it was actively palpitating. Stitches were also taken in the lungs.

May Day in Chicago

The coming of May day in Chicago found more than twenty thousand men—mechanics—out of work and the most distressing feature in connection with that unfavorable condition was that this vast army of men were voluntarily out of work. They refused to work because of some real or fancied grievance against men who were willing and anxious to employ them and pay them good wages.

This means, allowing five members to the family, which is the generally accepted average in estimating population, that there were, at least, a quarter of a million people, on May day in Chicago, who were compelled to undergo some hardship on account of being unemployed themselves or because those upon whom they depended for support, were not earning money with which to purchase the necessities of life.

It does seem strange that with all the multitude of laws that are being suggested and enacted in every state of the Union that no law yet has been suggested which gives promise of putting an end to the deplorable conditions such as are now existing in Chicago.

No legislator has yet sprung into prominence and deserved popularity by advocating a remedy for existing industrial evils. No man has yet even bid for fame, let alone attained it, by providing a method to get speedily at the truth in these never-ending disputes between laborers and their employers and administering a remedy which will prevent these strikes and lockouts.

Carpenters, mill men, sheet metal workers, lathers, painters and structural iron workers—thousands of them—refuse to work in Chicago.

Why?

Somebody is at fault for the existence of that condition. It is a sad commentary on our boasted advance in legislation and judicial procedure that organized society has no remedy for such a malady.

Labor is not always to blame for the existence of such conditions; and neither is capital.

Always, however, it is one or the other and the one at fault in each particular case should be ascertained and made to do justice.

Frequently politics effectually clogs what feeble machinery is available for dealing with these situations.

May day brought work and with it trouble and turmoil and want to the men of Chicago who need work.

While a dispute which should be ended at once drags along in its slow course families are in want and necessary work remains undone.

The Use of Gas Bombs

Disregarding entirely, whether the allies or the Germans are primarily to blame for the use of bombs filled with suffocating gasses as a weapon of warfare either in defensive or offensive fighting, the fact that resort has been made by either or both warring factions is to be deplored by all civilized people.

The use of these deadly gas bombs which spread death in a horrible form to all within a wide radius of the spot where they explode is barbarous in the extreme.

Civilized people even when they, for the time, relapse to the barbarism of war for commercial or industrial prestige do not, as a rule, so far forget themselves as to be guilty of the commission of atrocities, in the name of war, which would be expected only of the fanatical Bedouin, the Hotentot or the American Indian.

The use of poisonous gas is on a plane with the spreading of disease germs, the mutilation of the wounded and the wanton butchery of innocent non-combatants.

It is barbarism made more horrible by the intelligence of civilization and Christian people should protest against the practice.

Nothing more cowardly can be imagined than this wholesale slaughter of brave soldiers by resort to methods which would shame the wild hordes of the dark continent.

Speeding Up Lawmakers

Governor Willis' threat that he will either hold the legislature in session until it enacts a real and substantial liquor license law "decentralizer" or call the legislative body back in extra session until such a law is enacted is proof positive that the chief executive of the state has at last been forced to an acknowledgment, if not a realization, that legislators need to be persuaded by the executive power.

The legislatures, owing to the fact that the component parts are subject to varied local influences are not so likely to act for the good of the whole state and to redeem campaign promises as the executive.

Governor Willis has also evidently awakened to the fact that it is he and not the legislature the people will blame for the acts of omission or commission by the legislature.

It is time that the Governor applied the accelerator to the legislature. He will be compelled to do so if the legislature does anything worth while before it adjourns.

The present condition is no surprise to the majority of the people.

Let the legislature alone sounds well but will not work out well.

Poetry For Today

WILD DUCKS.

I heard the wild ducks passing in the night,
From shadowy skies their call came dimly down,
And the soft magic of their yearning flight
Swept the dull spaces of the sleeping town.

Into my chamber came the breath of spring,
Pregnant with promise from awakening buds;
Into my heart came fancies, billowing
With the glad rhythm of surf-loosened floods.

I saw the wind-blown crocus on the hills,
With the fresh starring of anemones,
Heard the thin laughter that the brown brook trills
Under the shelter of low-stooping trees.

A car clanged distantly. Across the way
A drowsy watchman waked with sudden fright.
On the dim court a soft enchantment lay,
I heard the wild ducks passing in the night.

When a fellow is engaged to a girl he spends a lot of his nights going to court to prove that he loves her. And after he marries her he often spends a lot of his days going to court to prove that she does not love him.

The man who won't listen to reason is usually thinking the same thing about you.

The lad who is always telling you that banks are not safe is the same fellow who never has anything to put in them.

After all it isn't necessary for a woman to get married five times in order to look well groomed.

When a man hires a girl he wants to see her recommendations. But he isn't that particular when he marries a girl.

What has become of the old fashioned woman who used to carry eggs into town and swap them for snuff and calico?

When a boob gets up enough courage to propose to a girl she has to act surprised. But the truth of the matter is that she told all her girl friends about her engagement months before and has spent several weeks arguing with her mother about the proper date for the wedding.

During the first year of married life she pesters him to death by asking him if he still loves her, and he gets highly peeved every time she does it. But about ten years later he would give almost anything he has if she showed enough interest in him to ask him if he still loved her.

A woman is inclined to exaggerate everything but her age.

FRENCH ARE BOMBARDING METZ FORTS

Paris, May 3.—The French have established long range guns in the vicinity of their line at Pont-au-Mousson and are bombarding the southern fortifications at Metz which are about ten miles away. The gunfire, says the official communique, caused considerable damage at various points along the southern front of the entrenched camp at Metz, particularly in the case of one of the forts, probably Fort St. Blaise, and at the barracks and the nearby railway.

Metz is the site of one of Germany's most formidable fortifications. It consists of a series of single forts or units, which surround the city at various strategic points. Fort St. Blaise, which is the most southern in the chain, is about five miles from the center of the city and about ten miles from the nearest French trenches at Pont-a-Mousson. Nearby are the forts of Graf Haeseler and Wagner, either of which may have been the principal mark of the French bombardment.

The damage to the railway, if considerable, will be of the greatest concern to the German general staff, as it is this railway running south and west from Metz over which all supplies are carried to the apex of the German wedge at St. Mihiel and to the neighboring line of trenches.

The official report adds: "In the valley of the Aisne and in Champagne the enemy has tried various appliances of war, which have had no effect. Near Tracy Le Mont glass tubes, which on breaking spread fumes of ether, were used. Between Rheims and the Argonne, our enemy resorted to bombs loaded with inflammable substances. Finally a gas producing a heavy green smoke was employed, but it remained over the enemy's line and failed to reach our front."

Germans Advancing.

The Germans claim to have made an advance in their raid into the Russian Baltic provinces, and after defeating the Russians to have reached the region to the southwest of Mitau, which is well on the road to Riga, and if they are in strong force they should prove a serious menace to the Russian communications.

There has been no further bombardment of Dunkirk, which would seem to indicate that the Germans had only one big gun in position and that the French airmen have made it so uncomfortable for the gun crew that it has withdrawn. Along the rest of the western front attacks and counter attack continue, but no battle of importance has developed out of them.

It appears that the Turkish report that the Asiatic shore of the Dardanelles is free of the invaders was correct.

TURKS DRIVE OUT FRENCH

London, May 3. — Ottoman troops, under the command of German officers directed by General Liman von Sanders, have cleared the Asiatic shores of the Dardanelles by a brilliant engagement lasting two days. Wireless reports from Athens announce that the 4,000 French soldiers, including the colonial veterans from northern Africa, have retired, after fighting stubbornly against superior numbers. The forts in the narrows were considerably damaged, but action of the fleet was hampered by mines, the clearing of any of which has been made difficult by the mobile Turkish batteries ashore.

GERMAN GUN HAS 23-MILE RANGE

Paris, May 3. — Information received from a deserter is to the effect that for about two months engineers of the Krupp gun works have been directing in the suburbs of Dixmude the installation of a marine gun capable of firing a shell over a very long range. It is this gun which may have bombarded Dunkirk. The gun is believed to have a range of 23.5 miles. So states an official communication of the French war office.

JURY FINDS WM. HOWARD GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

VERDICT IS RETURNED AT TEN O'CLOCK SATURDAY NIGHT AND FINDINGS CARRY FROM ONE TO TWENTY YEARS IN OHIO PENITENTIARY — DEFENSE HAS THREE DAYS IN WHICH TO FILE MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL.

After endeavoring to reach an agreement in the Howard murder case from 3:30 Saturday afternoon until ten o'clock, the jury found William Howard guilty of killing Mrs. Nannie Byrd, returning a verdict of manslaughter, which carries with it imprisonment in the Ohio Penitentiary for a period of from one to twenty years, the actual time of his imprisonment depending upon the Prison Board's action.

The case went to the jury at about 3:30 Saturday afternoon, after both sides had fought hard from Wednesday of the previous week, Prosecutor Maddox and Attorney W. B. Rodgers representing the state in the case and Gregg, Patton and Gregg representing the accused man.

Between four and five o'clock Saturday afternoon the jury made inquiry as to whether or not nine of the twelve men could return a verdict, and Judge Carpenter informed them that in criminal cases it required a unanimous vote to bring in a verdict. The inquiry and continued consideration of the case gave rise to the belief that the jury at the time the inquiry was made stood nine for murder in the second degree and three for manslaughter.

About six o'clock the jury was escorted to the Cherry Hotel where they dined together, Court Bailiff Clark accompanying the jurors, and returning them to the jury room.

When it was announced that a verdict had been agreed upon at torneys for the state and defense were called in, the accused man was brought over from the jail and the verdict was announced.

Howard took the announcement with the same calmness that had marked his demeanor throughout the trial.

The defense has three days in which to file application for a new trial, and, if no application is filed, Howard will, in all probability, be sentenced to the penitentiary Wednesday of this week.

The Howard trial has attracted a great deal of attention on account of the nature of the crime.

No one saw the fatal shot fired, and the evidence introduced was circumstantial, yet regarded as conclusive.

No motive for the crime was uncovered by the evidence submitted.

Mrs. Howard, wife of the accused man, could not be placed upon the stand by the state. Previously she had told her story to the police of how the accused had appeared at the back door of the Howard home with a revolver in his hand, and had fired one shot.

The woman who was killed had previously figured in a tragedy which shocked the entire city.

The accused man served 26 months in the Ohio penitentiary for robbing a safe in the Madison hotel, at London, Ohio, some 14 years ago, when he obtained money, valuables and securities amounting to nearly $5,000. He was porter at the hotel when the robbery occurred.

The cost of the case will be in excess of $1,000, the costs up to Saturday night, eliminating several fees including attorney fees, reaching nearly $875.

As the defendant was found guilty, the bulk of the costs will be borne by the State, and not the county.

GRAND JURY IN SESSION

The May grand jury convened Monday morning with some eight or ten cases to be considered, and with 54 witnesses to be examined.

As usual when the grand jury assembles, the court house was a scene of unusual activity, with the witnesses scattered about everywhere and a number of on-lookers present about the court room.

Prosecutor Maddox has been busy preparing for the session, and the Howard murder trial resulted in a great deal of extra work the past two weeks.

The cases coming before the jury are of a widely varied nature, from charges of murder in the first degree down to abandonment.

The most important cases are: For murder in the first degree, John Denner and Jesse Denner; Cutting with intent to kill, Walter Norris, of Waterloo; Robbery, Willard Harper and DeWitt Tobin, of near Edgefield; Attempt to assault, John Briley, of Jeffersonville; Stealing, James Allen, of Jefferson township; Pointing firearms, Percy Pugsley, of near Milledgeville; Abandonment, Daniel Strait, of Paint township.

It is expected that the grand jury will not complete its work until sometime Tuesday. Much interest centers on the result of the investigation of the grand jury.

REPORT PROOF OF GOOD ACCOMPLISHED

That Miss Sutton, Welfare Association nurse, has had a strenuous month is plainly evidenced by the April report, and verifies rumors that she has been working day and night.

Nurse Miss Sutton reports 23 new cases, 18 of them medical. The report covers 8 medical cases cured; 4 improved; 1 sent to infirmary; 1 moved out of town and 3 dead. Fifty-six working visits made; instructive visits 80; friendly visits 35; miscellaneous visits 44; a total number of 215 visits.

There have been six operations under the nurse's direction, two adenoidomy and one tonsilotomy and one child examined and fitted for glasses.

Medical cases carried May 1 are 20. The association workers closely in touch with Miss Sutton realize more fully than outsiders the immense amount of good that is being done under her supervision and the transformation she is working in the homes of the poor, teaching methods of cleanliness and sanitation, and improving conditions in every way.

Her work is already showing wonderful results, changing conditions of distress and suffering, into comfort; bringing health to the sick and finding employment for the idle.

ORGANIZATION OF BOY SCOUTS IS PROGRESSING

The re-forming of a boy scout organization in connection with the Y. M. C. A. is progressing well, according to an announcement made Monday by Secretary Patton of the Y. M. C. A., who has the project in charge. Six boys have successfully passed the Tenderfoot tests and with two more, expected to be secured Monday or Tuesday, the organization of the first patrol will be accomplished. Besides the six passing the tests, about eight tried unsuccessfully, but these will be given another chance.

Mr. Patton is anxious to secure an efficient body and will adhere to the letter of the national tests. Other patrols will be formed as the work progresses, which will unite to form a troop.

SEEKING CLUSTER LIGHTS FOR CENTRAL PART OF CITY

FOUR PETITIONS, BEARING CLOSE TO 1,000 NAMES, TO BE PRESENTED AT MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL TONIGHT — SUGGESTIONS ACCOMPANY APPEAL.

Four petitions, bearing close to 1,000 names, seeking cluster lights in the central part of the city, will be presented to the city council at its session this evening.

The petitions were put into circulation Monday morning, and among the signatures secured are those of many of Washington's most prominent citizens.

The cluster light proposition is not a new one, but this is the first definite action taken on the part of the citizenry to secure the improvement.

The petitions include several suggestions as to disposal of the lights and read as follows:

"We, the undersigned, residents of the city of Washington C. H., Ohio, hereby request your honorable body to take such steps as will give us some of what is known as CLUSTER LIGHTS, now being used by so many cities of similar size and smaller than our own city.

"We suggest Cluster Lights for the following, to-wit:

"Court Street, from Hinde

street to intersection of Court street with Columbus and Washington avenues.

"Main street, from East street to Temple street.

"Fayette street, from East street to Market street.

"North street, from East street to Market street.

"Market street, from Hinde street to North street.

"However, these are only suggestions, but we ask that you give us as many Cluster Lights as your judgment indicates."

Those in favor of the petition point, as an example, to London, O., which recently installed a mile and a half of these lights about its business section.

The petitions will be kept at the Cherry Hotel until council convenes, for the convenience of persons wishing to sign and who have had no opportunity to do so during the day.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVANCE

In this city this year the innovation of observance of Memorial Day on Sunday, will be introduced, and the parade, cemetery ceremonies and the decorating of graves, will take place on Sunday, May 30, and the Memorial Day program of patriotic speeches and music will be observed Monday, May 31, at one o'clock.

The committee in charge of the services are following the example of other cities in arranging for a general observance with the strewing of flowers on the departed comrade's graves and other ceremonies usually conducted at the cemetery on Sunday.

Col. B. H. Millikan Camp No. 150 Sons of Veterans, will carry out the wishes of the veterans on Sunday, May 30, when the graves will be decorated.

It is believed that by decorating the graves on Sunday that citizens generally will also decorate the graves of deceased relatives. Special efforts are being made this year in connection with the observance of Memorial Day, because it is the 50th anniversary of the close of the great struggle between the North and the South.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Ringworm.
There are few diseases of the skin easier to cure than ringworm of nonhairy parts of the body. It is, however, difficult to cure ringworm of the scalp and beard—especially the former. The reason for the intractability of ringworm of the scalp and beard is that the fungus (a vegetable parasite, the trichophyton) grows down into the hair follicles, and it is very difficult to make well recognized antiparasitics penetrate to the seat of the trouble without damaging the skin. It requires easily six months to a year of treatment to cure ringworm on the scalp or beard. Any one suffering from ringworm should place himself under the observation of a physician or a specialist on diseases of the skin if he wants to be cured. A plain sulphur ointment of one dram of sulphur to an ounce of benzoated lard, a small portion rubbed into affected localities night and morning, will usually and steadily cure ringworm of the nonhairy localities.

PLEASING RECITAL BY YOUNG READER

The recital given by Miss Mary Hazel Post, reader, impersonator and monologist of Ohio University, at Wayne Hall, Good Hope, drew a representative audience from quite a surrounding radius Saturday night.

The charming young reader was well received and left a most favorable impression upon her audience. The humorous predominated in a number of entertaining readings. Her impersonation work was especially fine as the old man of Riley's poem, "Knee Deep in June," and the characters of "A Denominational Garden."

The program of readings was supplemented by musical numbers. Little Miss Margaret Alice Porter, who possesses an unusual voice for a child, gave a very taking song, Mrs. H. D. Cockerill accompanying her.

A quartette, always popular, Messrs Harry Silcott and Luther Cockerill, Messrs Silcott and O. E. Hardway, accompanied by Mrs. William Everhart, contributed an enjoyable number and Miss Bernice Boggs, a really talented pianist, rendered a brilliant solo.

The recital was under the auspices of Sugar Grove church.

DEAD MAN WILL APPEAR TONIGHT

Although he died in New York last week after a short illness, John Bunny, King of the funny movies, will appear in one of his best comedies at the Wonderland tonight, when "Bunny's Little Brother" featuring John Bunny and Flora Finch, will be shown.

The production is one of Bunny's last comedies, and in it Bunny will appear just as funny as ever and just as lively as ever.

Copyright, 1915, by Serial Publication Corporation

By special arrangement for this paper a photo-drama corresponding to the installments of "Runaway June" may now be seen at the leading moving picture theaters. By arrangement made with the Mutual Film corporation it is not only possible to read "Runaway June" each week, but also afterward to see moving pictures illustrating our story.

SYNOPSIS.

June, the bride of Ned Warner, impulsively leaves her husband on their honeymoon because she begins to realize that she must be entirely dependent on him for money. She desires to be independent. June is pursued by Gilbert Blye, a wealthy married man. She escapes from his clutches with difficulty. Ned searches distractedly for June, and, learning of Blye's designs, vows vengeance on him. After many adventures June is rescued from river pirates by Durban, an artist, who uses her as a model for "The Spirit of the Marsh." Mrs. Durban becomes jealous of June and drives her out. She is kidnapped by Blye and Cunningham. June is taken by Blye to the boarding house of Mrs. Russell. She escapes, gets a job sewing and engages a cheap room in a tenement. The failure of another woman's attempt to be independent and a home maker opens June's eyes. Blye finds June in the tenement.

FIFTEENTH EPISODE. "At Last, My Love!"

CHAPTER I.

AT the moment that Blye met June Ned Warner was springing up the stairs, his jaws set and his fists clinched.

It was thus that Ned Warner had, after all his weary pursuit, found his bride—in the presence of Gilbert Blye! Behind Ned came the runaway June Warner's stern faced father and gentle faced mother; came Iris Blethering, June's bosom friend; Bobbie Blethering, husband of Iris; came Marie, June's high cheek boned maid, with her friend and admirer, Officer Dowd; came fat old black Aunt Debby, panting and out of breath and shrieking for her Miss June; came that handsome and energetic collier, Bouncer, leaping and barking and encouraging the excitement with all his canine might.

For only an instant Ned Warner stood nonplused before the door of the room; then he seized a chair, and, striding to the door, he swung the chair, while the others of the little throng, which had piled in after him, fell back.

Beyond the door the dark, handsome man with the black Vandyke had led the beautiful little runaway bride to a heavy man with thick lidded eyes and a round head bristling with short hair. He sat in a chair, and in his hands was money. He rose as June was led up to him, and into her hands he thrust the money. Then he smiled at her, while Gilbert Blye stepped back, saucily smiling and stroking his black Vandyke with his long, lean white fingers.

June shrank from the fat hands which were about to be clasped upon her shoulders and from that wide, thick smile upon the face of the heavy man and, laughing nervously, turned to Gilbert Blye, who bent his dark, handsome head above her and spoke to her in his low voice.

Crash!

The door splintered and gave way,

and through it burst the wild eyed Ned Warner, his jaw set and his fists clinched. For a second he stood bewildered by the strange light which flooded this large room; then, with an oath, he sprang for the black Vandyked man. He clutched his fingers around the throat and, with a savage roar, bore Gilbert Blye to the floor. The runaway bride uttered shriek after shriek.

At the door downstairs there stopped an electric coupe, driven by a sharp featured woman with a long nose and high arched brows. She jumped out, and from the dim hallway there came a short, thick man with a short, thick stub of a cigar in one corner of his mouth. It was the well known and justly famous private detective, Bill Wolf.

Iris and Father and Mother Moore Bent Forward Eagerly.

"Got him, Mrs. Blye!" he triumphantly hushed. "Your husband is right upstairs—with the girl!"

"The viper!" hissed Honoria Blye and dashed into the dim hallway.

Bill Wolf caught her as she started up the stairs.

"Not so fast, madam!" he called and laid hold of her arm. "This way, please."

"But my husband! The girl, June!" "They're here all right, and they can't get away. Here's your pictures, ma'am, and here's your bill."

He handed her a large roll of paper and two photographs, one of Gilbert Blye and one of June Warner.

Upstairs there was a scene of wild confusion. The runaway bride, her mother, Iris Blethering and the vivacious Tommy Thomas were screaming in hysteria, while the heavy man with the thick eyelids and the man with the white mustache and Bobbie Blethering and half a dozen other men rushed upon the fiercely struggling men on the floor.

"My husband!" shrieked June. "My husband!" And she ran around and around the excited pack of scrambling men, followed by the leaping, barking Bouncer.

Into this tumultuous scene there rushed Marie and Officer Dowd and fat old black Aunt Debby just as Bobbie by main strength dragged from Gilbert Blye the maddened assailant who had sprung upon him.

Gilbert Blye rose feeling of his throat, and for a moment he contemplated Ned Warner with dazed bewilderment; then a flush of anger came into his cheeks, and his black eyes blazed.

"Let him go!" he yelled, and, thrusting the heavy Edwards out of his way, he made a mad rush for the man who had attempted to strangle him.

It was huge Officer Dowd who this time jumped in between the two furious combatants and, with the aid of half a dozen young men, prevented the desperate encounter which would have ensued.

"My husband!" sobbed June and tried to throw herself upon him, but he turned from her. "Ned! Mr. Blye!"

A hand was laid upon Ned's arm—Iris Blethering's. She had forced her way through the excited throng.

"Why, Ned!" she called, shaking his arm and looking at the eyes from which the light of reason seemed to have fled. "Ned, listen to me. It's Iris! Don't you see? This is a motion picture studio!"

They all had to repeat it again and again before they could reach his dazed intelligence. He had seen but two objects in all this huge room, crowded with its moving picture machines, its properties, its scenery, its banks of strange lights, and those two objects had been his runaway bride and Gilbert Blye.

June! She stood now supported by her father and mother, her large, lustrous eyes turned appealingly on Ned, waiting the moment when she dared approach him again.

"Don't you understand, Ned?" she frantically cried. "Won't you understand? It's a motion picture play!"

Slowly he turned his glassy eyes in her direction. He comprehended at last, but there was no softening in his face, for there still stood the dark, handsome Gilbert Blye. Ned made a sudden lunge for his enemy, but Officer Dowd, watching him narrowly, stopped him.

"You have been with that man ever since you left me!" savagely charged Ned, turning suddenly toward the trembling June and shaking his finger at her.

In the abandoned bank room below Bill Wolf stood near a dusty window with Honoria Blye and rolled out before her a bill, yards long, covering all the separate items of his sleuthing on the trail of Gilbert Blye and June Warner.

"Go over the list, ma'am, item by item," confidently invited the faithful detective. "You'll find them correct. And here's a check on your own bank, all ready and made out for you to sign, and here's a fountain pen, ma'am."

Honoria Blye took the long list and began to check it off, item by item.

In the studio above a score of indignant eyes turned on Ned Warner, and there was a loud chorus of protest as he pointed accusingly at his unhappy runaway bride.

"What do you mean?" demanded the cold, stern voice of Gilbert Blye, and he advanced, his black eyes glowing. "This girl has done no wrong!"

They all talked at once, and they all talked indignantly at Ned Warner—Tommy Thomas, the white mustached Orin Cunningham, the round headed Edwards, Marie, Officer Dowd, Bobbie and Iris Blethering and all the camera men and members of the Blye Stock company. According to them, June Warner was the sweetest and best little wife any man dared wish for, and if Ned Warner chose to criticize her in any way he would have to answer to every person here, including fat old black Aunt Debby, who breast-straight up to him, waddling her voluminous self defiantly from side to side.

"Looky hyah, you, Mr. Ned!" she flared, and Bouncer, who had been rushing around the separated bride and groom, stopped to bark ferociously up at Ned. "Ain't that Marie been with our honey ever since she done come an' got her clothes? Aint' you got no gumption? Why, looky hyah, if you say a word about our Miss June I'll just about squash you!"

Iris and Father and Mother Moore bent forward eagerly toward Ned, and all smiled reassuringly. Then father Moore turned to June.

"My daughter," he said, "come home."

Mother and daughter wept in each other's arms.

CHAPTER II.

NED! It was a pathetic little figure which turned appealingly to the scowling young man. Her big eyes were full of tears. "It was all a mistake, dear!"

She choked back her tears, and there was a tense silence, in which Ned Warner stood with cold eyes and folded arms waiting.

"Oh, Ned, can't I make you see and understand?" And there was a piteous wistfulness about her. "We were all so happy on that day of our wedding, so happy as we started on our honeymoon trip! And when we stood alone in the Pullman drawing room, surrounded by our white ribboned baggage, there seemed to be no cloud in our sky!"

"Then why did you leave me?" Ned Warner's voice was harsh.

"It was the money!" Her lip trembled. "Don't you remember when I missed my purse? The porter came in just then, and you gave him a dollar. When he went out you gave me $30 and in just the same generous way you gave it to the negro. The difference was $29."

They were all started by the force of the comparison. Only Gilbert Blye smiled, and the smile did not escape Ned.

"Do you remember I cried and you put my head on your shoulder? You thought I was tired, but I cried from humiliation. I felt like a beggar. I realized that for the rest of my life I would have to accept gifts of money from you. Then I dreamed about it. I dreamed that I was a piteous little beggar, always holding out my palms for alms; that I was receiving pay for being your wife just as mother paid Aunt Debby and Marie. Both Aunt Debby and Marie sniffed sympathetically. "And last of all I dreamed that I was being dragged home from the altar by a ring in the nose as the savages of old dragged home their brides. And when the train stopped and woke me up I couldn't stand it. I threw down your money and ran from the train."

"To meet this man!" interrupted Ned sternly. "Gilbert Blye was waiting on the station platform at Tarnville." And he noted that June looked at him in surprise.

"Hold on there!" Gilbert Blye spoke sharply. "I was waiting, but for a New York train. I had been to our Tarnville factory. I saw this beautiful girl on the platform and thought immediately what a good motion picture subject she would be. I was right. She screens perfectly." And he smiled approvingly at June.

"So you were strangers," remarked Ned, and there was an implied sneer in his tone. "You helped her on the train, and I saw you in the car talking with her."

"You?" Both the runaway bride and the dark, handsome Blye asked that question.

"Yes, I!" this triumphantly. "I caught an express and overtook your local as we pulled into the station at New York, and through the car windows I saw you bending over her and smiling, and she was smiling up at you!"

There was a pause, and the listeners looked from June to Blye and then at Ned.

"Oh, yes!" and June's brow cleared. "I had sold my watch to a funny old lady on the train to pay my fare. Mr. Blye bought the watch from her and very kindly offered to let me repurchase it whenever I found it convenient. He gave me his card; that was all."

"All!" Ned thundered. "He chased you from the train in a taxi, and I followed, but I lost you both."

"I did not!" Blye heatedly retorted. "I jumped in a taxi and tore straight for Cunningham's hotel," and he turned to the white mustached man for corroboration. "We were due at a dinner party that night and were to stop at Mrs. Russell's, where all the girls of the company afterward boarded."

"And I went straight to Iris!" added the aggrieved June.

"Indeed she did!" heartily agreed Iris. "She told us she had left you because you had given her money." And Bobbie Blethering was still profoundly perplexed.

"You remember I came out to the house for June's purse." Iris turned to Mr. and Mrs. Moore. "She wouldn't even let us lend her money, because she had a principle about being independent. When you and Ned chased in and drove poor June from our house and Ned found Gilbert Blye's card in her glove, then it was all off!"

"When I slipped out of Iris' window I had my purse, but no clothes," June pathetically remembered. "So I went out home to Brynport and stole my clothes and Marie."

"Why did he go to Brynport at the same time?" Ned glared savagely at Blye.

"It was an inspiration," Gilbert Blye smiled suavely and stroked his black Vandyke with his long, lean white fingers, and his black eyes glowed. "We had just formed the Blye Stock company at the dinner party. Mr. Edwards," and he nodded to the heavy man with the thick lidded eyes, "is our financial backer. Mr. Cunningham," a nod for the white mustached man, "is our leading actor, who has also an interest in the company. I showed them the picture of the beautiful girl in the watch. It had given me a great idea for a motion picture play, 'The Runaway Bride.' They were delighted with it, but we had no girl of the type."

"Wasn't I the jealous little party?" laughed Tommy Thomas. "I was to be the only leading lady of the Blye Stock company."

Gilbert Blye favored the vivacious brunette with a pinch on the ear.

"I remembered hearing Mrs. Warner tell the old lady on the train that she must earn her own living. I was certain that she would screen well. Why not get the original heroine of the idea? Edwards and Cunningham were enthusiastic. I had her address in her watch. I jumped in Cunningham's limousine and hurried right out to Brynport."

"And we reached the cafe just in time to chase you," Bobbie Blethering was beaming with eager interest. He was piecing together a puzzle which had baffled him. "When Ned found your card we went to your house, and your wife told us you were at the dinner party."

"My wife," and a shade of annoyance passed over Blye's dark, handsome face.

"And on the way in from Brynport my taxi broke down," June went on. "Mr. Blye appeared out of the darkness as if by magic and offered his limousine."

"I have a confession to make," interrupted Blye. "I threw glass on the road." And there was a general movement of shocked understanding. All their cars had popped tires on that glass. "It was my only opportunity to stop the runaway bride. On the way in to the city I persuaded her that she could earn her independence easier and quicker in moving picture work than in any other way."

"So I became a temporary member of the Blye Stock company. I was to play the lead in the feature which he elaborated after I told him about my money problem."

"That was a great idea!" Blye was very enthusiastic. "The man, the woman and the money! It will appeal to every class and condition of people."

"I was to be the only leading lady."

We're spending a fortune in advertising it. Look at this new twenty-four sheet poster." And, moving a piece of scenery, he displayed a big lithograph of "The Runaway Bride," by Gilbert Blye. Portrayed by the Blye Stock Company.

Ned Warner was the only one who paid no attention to the lithograph. His arms were still folded; his eyes were still cold. June looked at him, and her eyes filled with despair.

"Why was it necessary to bind and gag me and leave me all night in the woods?" the husband demanded.

"Ned, what do you mean? Did some one do that to you?" June was half sobbing, and there was general surprise on the part of the Blye Stock company.

"Oh, Miss June, I didn't mean it to go so far!" the high cheek boned maid, Marie, cried, and she was pulling her thumbs in rapid succession while Aunt Debby glared ferociously at her.

"You!" June cried. "Why, Marie?"

And she looked in fright at Ned. There was a sneer on his lips.

"Well, Bouncer found Mr. Ned in Mrs. Villard's garden, and I knew you were hiding from Mr. Ned until you could make some money, so I told the chauffeur and the gardener not to let Mr. Ned see you or speak to you, and the next thing I knew Mr. Ned was gone."

He glared at Marie and June's heart sank. He shrugged his shoulders, as if dismissing Marie's narrative.

"I saw no cameras at Mrs. Villard's that night." And now he turned scowlingly to Orin Cunningham. "Yet I saw this man distinctly making love to my wife. And I saw Gilbert Blye doing the same thing!"

"We were rehearsing, Mr. Warner," explained Blye quietly.

"Yes, Ned!" June was crying, but, though Ned saw her, he paid no attention to her.

"We were to take the actual picture the next morning in the studio, and we were working out some scenes. It may help you if I tell you that Mr. Cunningham is the pursuing villain in 'The Runaway Bride.' I have been directing the pictures. I have taken the liberty several times of showing Mr. Cunningham how I wished scenes enacted. I also play the deserted groom." And his black eyes flashed.

Ned laughed, but there was no mirth in it. June shrank under his contemptuous gaze, and her mother patted gently the hand which lay in her arm.

"I'll swear it was not a moving picture rehearsal the night you dragged my wife out of the New York cafe and took her on board your yacht."

"You bet it wasn't." It was the heavy T. J. Edwards, and he was bobbing his round head vigorously. "A contract is a contract. When your wife saw you she wouldn't go on board the yacht; she wouldn't finish the pictures; she couldn't do anything. My heavens, man, do you know I had already spent $75,000 on this feature? And if this girl quit we couldn't get another one to take her place, could we? So we dragged her on board the yacht." And he glared his defiance at all of them. Money was money.

Ned Warner had been sitting on the edge of a table. Now he sprang to his feet, and his eyes flamed. He caught his wife by the wrist and pulled her away from her mother.

"Here's one thing you can't explain." He dropped her wrist, and she stood swaying with half closed eyes, but there was no mercy in him. "I saw you rush from a house in a filmy stage costume."

There was a strained tenseness in the group which surrounded them. John Moore started to come to his daughter, but Ned fiercely waved him back. "It was moving picture work. Very well. But tell me this—how could any girl who could not endure the humiliation of accepting money from her husband consent to appear on the street for any purpose in such a costume?"

There was a deathlike stillness among them, broken by a wild sobbing from the little runaway bride.

"Ned!" she cried. "Oh, Ned!" And she clung upon his arm. He held coldly rigid. "Forgive me! You can't know how I've suffered! You can't know how I've loathed it all! I was so mistaken, so wrong! I thought I had such a wonderful ideal. When I had achieved my independence, when I need no longer look to you for money, I was to return to you, and we were to walk hand in hand through life in that love which can be founded only upon mutual respect, which asks love for love and nothing more. I meant our love to be without a flaw. No man can understand the hurt to a woman when after marriage she becomes absolutely dependent on his charity."

"Why, June!" The small, mild voice of Mrs. Moore, and she stepped forward with deep concern on her gentle face. "What is all this talk about a husband's charity? And she turned with wonder to Father Moore. "A husband makes only one gift to his wife, and that is at the altar. After that everything he has is hers, if people will only remember the marriage service. Your ring is a symbol of it. With all my worldly goods I thee endow."

Gilbert Blye clutched his black Vandyke and looked at the ceiling; then he smiled suavely.

"That's a great idea! I'll work it into the feature!" But no one heard him. There was an audible snuffle from Iris Blethering, and Tommy Thomas was looking intensely sentimental.

"And you, my son!" She turned with surprising severity on Ned Warner. "Have you forgotten that you promised to love, cherish and protect my daughter?"

There was a cry from the little runaway bride and a sob from Ned Warner as, oblivious to all around them, they clasped each other in a solemn embrace.

From that loving clasp the beautiful wife of Ned Warner raised a radiantly happy countenance to her mother.

"And I have no problem," she laughed, and then she cried. And Iris Blethering and Tommy Thomas sobbed together and formed a lasting friendship. And everybody was happy, including Marie and Officer Dowd, who had become conscious at the mention of the marriage service, and Aunt Debby, who was praising her Redeemer in an unconsciously audible voice, and Bouncer, who was leaping and barking indiscriminately for the benefit of everybody and anybody.

"Where are they? Where are they?" screamed a shrill voice, and Honoria Blye burst into the group.

Gilbert Blye walked serenely over to meet her.

"You may go home to your parrot, Honoria," he advised her quite happily. "Then there came a cold sobriety in his black eyes. "You can't interfere with my business this time, as you have done ever since we were married, and you can no longer assume a dominance over me with your money." Suddenly the glow returned to his black eyes, and he looked to June and smiled his suave smile. "I have worked out my independence."

CHAPTER III.

HERE was a gay supper party at the New York cafe that night. The Blye Stock company entertained their departing star and her friends. Ned Warner sat beside his happy June. There seemed an extra affection tonight between Father and Mother Moore and Bobbie and Iris Blethering, and Tommy Thomas was the gayest of the gay. The eyes of the white mustached Orin Cunningham twinkled incessantly, and heavy T. J. Edwards sat with a smile of intense satisfaction on his thick lips. The feature was finished without an accident, and the first of the films was fine. Bobbie Blethering and Blye took an instant liking to one another. The old feud was entirely forgotten.

"They're good people, Ned," whispered the happy June. "And they were so good to me!"

Ned beamed down at June with delight in every inflection of her voice, in every turn of her beautiful head, in every fleeting expression of her lovely countenance, in every glance of her lustrous eyes. Quite forgotten was all the tearing strain of these past days; quite gone were all his bitterness and hate.

In her wedding gown, which she had donned once again, June was a vision of beauty.

Up rose Gilbert Blye at the head of the table. In his hand he held a small shining object. He made a wonderful speech about it, a speech full of wit and sentiment and good will and things which made everybody happy, and with an extraordinary flourish of words he presented that watch to the little runaway bride.

Amid whacking applause the little runaway bride made a blushing speech of acceptance; then there was a whispered consultation between herself and the deserted groom, begun by a suggestion from the latter. Then up rose the beaming Ned Warner and made a manly speech, a generous speech, a speech full of heart bursting happiness, and amid great applause he presented that tiny watch to the dark, handsome, black Vandyked Gilbert Blye.

Then up rose Bobbie Blethering and looked at the clock and motioned to the head waiter.

"Well, it's train time," he proudly announced.

Two of the party looked up in perplexity. Every one else was grinning. "Goodby, June, dear!" And Iris Blethering, jumping from her chair, threw her arms around June's neck and sobbed happily.

"Here are your tickets, Ned," called smiling eyed Father Moore, tossing over an envelope, and at that moment the doors of the private dining room opened, and in marched Aunt Debby and Marie laden with white ribboned honeymoon luggage. June's mother was at the farewell dinner, and she smiled with Father Moore at the thought that the happy couple did not know that on the back of the Moore card which was to take them to the railroad station to finish their uncompleted honeymoon was this legend: "JUST MARRIED."

Aunt Debby led the way with the bride and groom as they started to leave.

Bouncer leaped up as the rice began to shower upon the embarrassed bride, and Mother Moore leaned far across and whispered:

"June, dear, don't forget your purse."

THE END.

It Made a Change.

"Do you find the air of this neighborhood salubrious?" asked the new arrival.

"Not any more," replied the oldest inhabitant. "There has been a big improvement since they moved the glass factory to the other side of the county."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

PRESIDENT IS SPONSOR

Williamstown, Mass., May 3.—In St. John's Episcopal church President Wilson became one of the sponsors for his grandson here yesterday. Rev. J. Franklin Carter, the pastor of the church, conducted the ceremony, using the regular Episcopal service. Contrary to the expectations of outsiders, the president's grandson was christened Francis Woodrow Sayre. Only the immediate members of the family and a few close friends of the Sayre family attended the baptism. President Wilson left behind him as a gift for Francis Woodrow Sayre a ball and bat.

Former Congressman Would Have National Government Appropriate $25,000,000 Annually For Road Building In The States—Ohio Executive Declares Mud Holes, Poor Roads and High Cost of Living Go Hand In Hand—Cass Bill, Which Is Up For Passage In House Shortly, Is In Line With Governor's Recommendations.

Governor Frank B. Willis joined the good roads boosters in Ohio and issued an appeal not only for the construction of improved roads, but also urged officials everywhere to see that those already improved are kept in proper condition by maintenance and repair. The governor urged that there be closer co-operation between the nation and the state, also between state, township and county officials, in the building and improvement and repair of roads.

The Cass road codification law, which comes up for passage in the house shortly, not only makes provision for this co-operation in road building, urged by the governor, but also simplifies the procedure, according to the author of the measure.

"From the dawn of history advancement in civilization and improvement in the methods of transportation have gone hand in hand," said Governor Willis. "Without doubt one of the chief reasons for the early progress and leadership of Phoenicia, Greece,

GOVERNOR WILLIS.
Ohio's Chief Executive Joins Good Roads Boosters.

Carthage and Rome was the fact that the peoples of these several nations were so situated as to secure better methods of travel and transportation than were vouchsafed to others.

Roads a Vital Issue.
"As towns were built and roads were constructed civilization spread. Even now in various parts of Europe the old Roman roads remain monuments of the far-sighted genius of their builders. The question of improved public highways is now more than ever an important one. Better means of transportation is a necessity for the progress and self-preservation of our present day civilization.

"Unfortunately, in the construction of highways thus far in this country there has been too little co-operation among different authorities. In the future there must be closer relationship between the federal government, state authorities and local authorities in the construction of roads.

"In the state of Ohio, co-operation between the state highway department, the counties and the townships in the construction, repair and maintenance of the public roads of the state will give a great impetus to better road building and also to the equally important questions of maintenance and repair.

"Under the system which has thus far been followed in Ohio too little attention has been given to these latter elements. It is certainly poor business method to expend thousands of dollars in the construction of roads and then allow them to go into decay when the expenditure of a comparatively small amount would keep them in repair. A little defect in the surface of a highway if not attended to promptly will soon become a serious defect and ultimately will result in the destruction of the usefulness of the highway.

Crime to Neglect Roads.

"Improvement and maintenance must not be neglected by our state, county and township officials. The work which has already been done at the cost of a vast sum of money must not be allowed to depreciate through neglect. It should be brought constantly to the attention of those charged with the duty of building and maintaining highways that the preservation of these highways through proper repair and maintenance is as important as the construction of new lines of transportation. It would be little short of a crime to allow the millions of dollars already expended in road building to be wasted through lack of proper attention.

"Nothing in nature or in human construction is permanent. The construction of roads should be under supervision of the best informed engineers. The law should provide an efficient system of co-operation among state, county and township authorities, to the end that a better system of highways may be constructed and that the vast amount of the taxpayers' money already invested in improved roads shall be preserved through proper repair and maintenance.

"The price of commodities paid by the consumer is influenced in no small degree by the cost of transportation. Investigations which have been made by the United States department of agriculture show that on the average the producer's price is only about 47 per cent of the price paid by the consumer. The investigations thus carefully made indicate, for example, that the producer of oranges gets only about 20 per cent of the price paid by the consumer. The man who raises onions gets 28 per cent of the consumer's price. The man who buys a quart of strawberries sees 51 per cent of the amount paid by him go to the factors other than the producer.

Lowers Living Cost.

"Of course it is understood that a large proportion of this is perfectly legitimate expense for transportation, distribution, etc. Nevertheless it must be evident that as the cost of transportation is reduced the producer and the consumer are brought relatively closer together and both profit thereby.

"The constant growth of our towns and cities has increased the demand for farm products. This must be supplied by greater production, and by bringing the consumer in closer touch with the producer through improved methods of transportation. Where roads are poor farm products are usually high in the surrounding towns and cities. Fruit may be rotting on the ground in the orchards of the country, yet ten miles away people are hungry for this same fruit, but can not get it in many instances through the lack of proper facilities for transportation and distribution.

"A mud hole, the bad road and the high cost of living usually go together. Let us eliminate all of these undesirable features by constructing better roads and by keeping them in repair after they are constructed."

Former Congressman Ralph Cole, a power in state and national Republican politics, declared in favor of a national appropriation of $25,000,000 by Uncle Sam, to be distributed among the different states and used by them in the building of improved roads.

"To say that I am in favor of co-operation by the federal government with the states in the construction, repair and maintenance of public roads is not new for me, for while a member of congress both by vote and in speeches on the floor of the house I declared my position on this great question," said former Congressman Cole.

"I have long believed that congress had as much right to appropriate money and co-operate with the states in the construction of public roads as it had to appropriate millions of dollars and give away millions of acres of public lands in aid of the construction of railroads from the Mississippi river to the Pacific coast. Congress has as much right to appropriate money for public roads in the states as it had to appropriate $3,000,000 to road construction in the Philippine Islands; $2,000,000 in aid of the construction of roads in Porto Rico; $1,400,000 in aid of the construction of miners' trails in Alaska; $1,300,000 for the construction of public roads in the canal zone, and $87,000 for the construction of public roads in the island of Guam, which is so small in area that it takes a magnifying glass to find it in the Pacific ocean.

Build Roads at Home.

"Just at this time and in this connection the attention of the taxpayers of the country should be called to the fact that congress has as much right to appropriate money for the construction of public roads in the states and thereby benefit the people of the forty-eight states as it had to appropriate $35,000,000 to the construction of a steam road in Alaska.

"I favor an annual appropriation of congress of at least $25,000,000 for co-operation with the states in the construction of public roads, and think that the best plan for the distribution of such an annual appropriation to the states is on a basis of one-half each for population and star and rural route mileage. For congress to make an annual appropriation of $25,000,000 and apportion it to the states upon this basis will bring to Ohio from the federal treasury $1,152,800 annually, and it is a queer coincidence just at this time that this is the amount State Highway Commissioner Cowen needs to carry out the promises heretofore made and to meet the requests which have been filed in his office for main market road money."

NAVAL BATTLE IN NORTH SEA

London, May 3.—The British admiralty makes the following announcement:

"A series of small affairs took place in the neighborhood of the Galloper and North Hinder lightships. The British destroyer Recruit was sunk by a submarine. Four officers and twenty-one men were saved by the trawler Daisy. The trawler Colombia was sunk by two German torpedo boats from the westward, only one deckhand being saved. A division of British destroyers chased the Germans. An hour's running fight ensued, and both the German torpedo boats were sunk. The British suffered no casualties. Two German officers and forty-four men were rescued and made prisoners."

The two lightships named are roughly on a line drawn between Harwich on the Essex coast and Ostende on the Belgian coast, the Galloper being some thirty miles off Harwich, while the North Hinder lightship is about the same distance off the Belgian coast.

TURKS DECLARE ALLIES REPULSED

Berlin, May 3.—The Turkish war office at Constantinople issued the following official statement: "On the evening of May 1 the left wing of the enemy was attacked by us several times from positions near Gaba Tebeh and was driven back in a northerly direction towards Ariburnau. May 2 the enemy attempted to advance in order to avoid the effective flank fire of our artillery, but was driven back to the old positions on the coast by a bayonet attack. We have captured two machine guns and all material and ammunition landed by the enemy near Sedd El Bahr. By reason of our artillery fire the enemy is in an untenable position. The allied warships are taking no action against the fortifications in the straits."

NOTED G. A. R. ORATOR TO SPEAK HERE

It has been the custom of the Epworth League to entertain the G. A. R. and its auxiliary organizations with a memorial entertainment on some evening during the week preceding Decoration Day. This year the league is planning an entertainment quite out of the ordinary and has engaged Past State G. A. R. Commander Charles W. Blodgett to deliver an address on the evening of Wednesday, May 26th. The address will be in the nature of an eulogy to the late Col. B. H. Millikan, the late Post Commander George F. Robinson and other G. A. R. comrades with whom Col. Blodgett had been in connection. Col. Blodgett is recognized as an orator unsurpassed and his address will be one of the finest ever given in this city.

GOOD WORK AT RECITAL

A very interesting recital was given at Conservatory Hall Saturday afternoon by Misses Helen McKee, Mary Baughn, Margaret Schneider and Gertrude Miller. Miss Schneider played Geig's "To the Spring," and "By Moonlight"—Bendel. The latter was especially well rendered, showing the player's delicate touch. Miss McKee's numbers were Sulak Octave Etude and "Segmunds Love Song"—Wagner. The Wagner number showed in every way a brilliant piece of work. Miss Baughn contributed another Octave Etude Sulak, and a Chapin Mazurka played with splendid effect. This young pianist has that strength in tone production that is necessary in concert work. Miss Miller was exceedingly good in a McDowell number "Elfin Land." The faculty was much pleased with the progress shown by the young ladies.

THIRD GAME OF SEASON RESULTS IN SMALL DEFEAT FOR ATHLETICS—RENO NOT UP TO FORM AND GENERAL FIELDING OF LOCALS BELOW STANDARD, ALTHOUGH FAR BETTER THAN THAT OF THEIR ADVERSARIES—SCORE 5 TO 3—ORIGINAL IBOLDS OF CINCINNATI NEXT SUNDAY.

Jack Pfeister, ex-twirler of the Chicago Cubs, assisted by a third baseman and a center fielder, Sunday defeated the Athletics in a close 5 to 3 game at Athletic park. The trio represented the Branch Hill Exhibition team of Hills Center, O., and was complemented by a very ordinary set of back lot fielders. An odd feature of the Hillman line-up was that its real ball players were all named Jack, and led one grandstand comedian to the opinion that the "pack" consisted of "jacks and jokers."

Reno was far from usual form and in four innings failed to control the horsehide. The Hillmans were allowed to walk frequently and those that did not walk, hit freely. Cotterill took the slab in the fifth and pitched good ball the rest of the game.

Pfeister Had 'Em Guessing.
Pfeister was the big work for the visitors. The old timer demonstrated that he had not lost all of his former ability at the slab, and in the opening innings held the Athletics in a stage fright. In the fourth the locals began to find the ex-phenom and slid two around the route, adding another in the fifth. Pfeister then settled down to a splendid exhibition of twirling, holding the Athletics to goose eggs the remainder of the game.

Outside of Pfeister and the two players mentioned the Hill Center bunch was nothing more than a school kid team. Their errors were rank and plentiful and the first baseman, after missing every chance, was taken out of the game in the fifth.

On the Washington lineup, Jones, Mobley and Noon performed in faultless style in the gardens. Corwin was the bright star of the infield. Reed played a good game at third and wielded the stick to good advantage.

Next Sunday the Original Ibolds, a fast Queen City organization without a 1915 defeat on its record, play here.

GOT THE TRAIN STOPPED.

Two Attempts Were Dismal Failures, but the Third Won.

When the late Robert Bonner purchased Maud S. he sent her to Charter Oak park to be trained. One day a friend of Mr. Bonner left New York to visit him at the park, but found that the train did not stop at that station. The conductor was polite, but said that he could not go against orders.

At New Haven a halt was made and Mr. Bonner's friend tried to bribe the engineer with a ten dollar bill, but in vain. He was then told that Charles P. Clark, the president of the road, was on the train, and he went to him and politely requested that the stop be made.

"Why don't you see the conductor?" asked Mr. Clark.

"I have, but he will not disobey orders."

"Why not then go forward and bribe the engineer?"

"I tried bribery at New Haven, but it would not work."

The absence of evasion was the best policy. Mr. Clark not only gave orders to have the train stopped at Charter Oak, but promised some day to see Maud S. He had witnessed the attempt at bribery, and the frank confession, of the offense seemed to please him.

BIG NAVAL GUNS.

Death at Times Comes From Merely Serving Them in Battle.

Modern naval engagements demonstrate that the gunners sometimes die after the battle, even when they have not been wounded or injured in any way. Death is caused by disturbance of the circulation due to the strain placed upon the nervous system by the excitement and the tremendous vibrations of modern guns.

Curiously enough, this collapse is quite as likely to affect the most robust members of the gun crew as the ones with poorer physiques and bears no relation to the individual's courage. It is due to a lack of sufficient reserve power of the heart, which is dependent upon the quality of the heart muscles, and there is no known means of estimating this inherent quality exactly.

It is possible, of course, to determine the force and strength of the heart in an individual, but only some test, such as that of actual battle, will determine the quality of the heart muscles.

Thus the veteran gunner who has proved his heart quality in actual battle has become a peculiarly valuable factor in modern naval warfare.—Los Angeles Times.

QUARREL OVER SPILLED FLOUR CAUSES MURDER

Ross county experienced another murder Saturday evening, when Lewis Cox, while intoxicated, shot and instantly killed his father-in-law, James Tillett, aged 53 years, at their home about five miles south of South Salem.

The trouble which ended in the tragedy was over some flour which Tillett had spilled upon the floor, it is claimed; and Cox seized a shot gun and opened fire upon the older man, at close range.

The contents of the shot gun penetrated the right side of Tillett's neck, tearing a horrible wound in his throat and severing the jugular vein and the spinal column.

Soon after the affray Cox was placed under arrest and taken to the Ross county jail to answer to a charge of murder, while the remains of Tillett, after being viewed by the coroner of Ross county, were removed to the undertaking establishment of J. M. Murray, of Greenfield, and prepared for burial.

Funeral services were held in the South Salem Presbyterian church Monday afternoon, and interment was made at South Salem.

The crime is one of the worst committed in the South Salem locality in a great many years.

The deceased was a distant relative of Mr. John Tillett, residing three miles south of this city.

Allies Moving Steadily Toward Narrows of Dardanelles—Turks Say Little Progress Made—Italy Now Expected to Participate in Struggle After Parliament Meets May 12—Another Battle at Hill No. 60—German Aircraft Headed Toward England.

By Associated Press.

Berlin, May 3.—An important Austrian victory in the eastern campaign is announced in the communication issued today from German army headquarters. The statement is made that the Austrians have pierced and broken the entire Russian front in West Galicia, from the neighborhood of the Hungarian frontier to the junction of the Vistula and the Dniester.

The report says the victory was won in the presence of Field Marshal Arthduke Frederick, with the troops in command of General von Mackensen.

"Such of the enemy as succeeded in escaping," the statement says, "are in hasty retreat toward the east closely pursued by the allied troops. The trophies of the victory cannot yet even be approximated."

The victory in Western Galicia, reported in the German official announcement, would appear to be of notable significance. From the junction of the Vistula and the Dniester rivers to the Hungarian frontier is about 60 miles.

After the surrender of the Austrian fortress of Przemyśl, in Galicia, the Russian forces, released from siege work in front of this position, began moving to the south in the direction of the Uzsok pass and to the west in the direction of Cracow.

That a great battle was being fought in western Galicia was indicated in dispatches sent out from Berlin several days ago.

London, May 3.—No further official announcements have been made concerning fighting in the Dardanelles, but unofficial dispatches agree that the allies are progressing toward the narrows under cover of the warships, which are inflicting great damage on the Turkish defenses, including the reported total destruction of the town of Dardanelles.

A late Turkish official announcement claims a victory near Gaba Tepeh, in the Gallipoli peninsula, which is said to have resulted in the retreat of the colonial British troops to the shelter of their warships.

This account, however, does not agree with the British official report published Saturday, which declared that the British were resuming the offensive, after a stubborn resistance on the part of the Turks.

French troops are reported to have made another landing on the Asiatic side, and to be advancing rapidly.

London, May 3.—The sinking of three more vessels in the North Sea by German submarines, in their new campaign, is reported today.

The Swedish steamer Ellida went to the bottom in less than three minutes after she was torpedoed, but the 18 persons on board escaped.

Trawlers reaching Aberdeen report that two vessels in a fishing fleet, less than 50 miles of that port, were sunk yesterday.

It would appear as though the submarines ran amuck among the Aberdeen fishing fleet. In addition to sending two to the bottom, they chased three other trawlers for 20 miles. A patrol boat was then seen approaching, whereupon the submarines submerged.

It is believed in Rome that Austria and Germany have decided on another effort to prolong the negotiations between Italy and the central empires, in the hope of reaching a peaceful settlement of the territorial dispute.

not to postpone the assembling of Parliament on May 12, and it is thought in Rome that Parliament may assist the Cabinet in reaching a "decision which now appears to be almost inevitable."

Constantinople, May 3.—The Turkish War Department today gave out a statement saying: "The enemy has not succeeded in improving his position on the coast of the Gallipoli peninsula."

The statement claims that the French battleship Henri IV and the British battleship Vengeance have been damaged by shells from the guns of the Turkish forts, and it says that the Russian Black Sea fleet, after an hour's demonstration off the Bosphorus, retired rapidly in a northerly direction.

London, May 3.—It is reported that a Zeppelin airship is traveling in the direction of England from the Island of Vlieland, which is on the northern coast of the Netherlands. The airship passed over this island at 10 o'clock this morning.

London, May 3.—A German aeroplane, coming from the direction of Ostend, scouted over Dover and Folkestone at noon today. It was driven off by gun fire.

London, May 3.—There was given out today a British official statement which says: "May 1 the Germans attacked Hill No. 60, southeast of Ypres, and yesterday evening they attacked in the neighborhood of St. Julien."

"These attacks were both repulsed with heavy losses for the enemy, in spite of the fact that he again used poisonous gases, emitted from the trenches and from especially manufactured shells."

Washington, May 3.—Such advice as have come to the United States government through official and unofficial channels within the last few days indicate that Italy's preparations clearly tend to her participation in the war at an early date.

IN IRONTON

Portsmouth, May 3.—Fire, which swept an entire business block at Ironton this afternoon, gutted the Masonic Temple, opera house and a number of other buildings, doing damage estimated at from $150,000 to $200,000.

Portsmouth was called upon for aid, but before a special train, carrying the fire department, had been made up, word was received that the fire was under control.

Mincola, N. Y., May 3.—Mrs. Florence Conklin Carman was placed on trial in the Supreme Court today, for the second time, on the indictment charging her with the murder of Mrs. Lois D. Bailey, at Freeport, on the night of June 30 last.

The jury in the first trial disagreed, and Mrs. Carman has been at liberty under bond since then.

17,000,000 MEN
ENGAGED IN WAR

Russia has 8,000,000 men in the field; Germany, 5,000,000; France, 3,000,000, and Great Britain 1,000,000; total, 17,000,000.

The soldiers are counted every day, but is one man had to count them the task would take him about 289 days, working day and night and taking no meal times.

If the whole of the troops could be crowded close together like strap hangers in a New York subway train, they would cover 1,170 acres of ground.

Could the men be stood each upon another's head they would make a column 17,615 miles high.

Standing shoulder to shoulder they would require a trench that would reach from New York to San Francisco and back again.

If each man wrote only a single word the result would provide a newspaper with ten pages of solid matter every day for six months.

If the fastest stenographer had to take down the names he would be 177 days getting his notes and nearly three years translating them.

WILSON IS AWAITING THE OFFICIAL REPORT

President Will Then Demand Full Damages for "Gulf Light" Cargo and Crew, it Is Believed, and Serious Complications Are Not Unlikely—Damages Will Exceed $1,000,000.

By Associated Press.

Washington, May 3.—President Wilson will reserve judgment on the torpedoing of the American steamer Gulf Light, until full official details are received.

The President inquired about the incident when he arrived from Williamstown, Mass., today, but was told that, so far as White House officials knew, no official word had come in.

On the face of the news dispatches officials admit that the attack on the ship is a serious matter, and they intend that a very thorough investigation shall be made, and that no hasty action should be taken.

New York, May 3.—The two Americans, in addition to Captain Gunther, who lost their lives when the American steamer Gulf Light was torpedoed off the Sicily Islands, were Charles C. Short, of Chicago, the wireless operator, and Eugene Chapman, of Port Arthur, Texas, a seaman, according to a cablegram received here today by the Gulf Refining Company, owners of the vessel.

The Gulf Light and its cargo, according to James Kennedy, marine superintendent of the company, were valued at $1,000,000.

A claim for the loss sustained, including damages for the lives lost, undoubtedly will be filed with the State Department, he thought. The cargo, Mr. Kennedy said, consisted of gasoline and oil.

Washington, May 3.—The first official report of the torpedoing of the American tank steamer Gulf Light reached the State Department today in an undated dispatch from Consul Stephens at Plymouth, England, saying the attack was made Saturday, but the vessel was still afloat and that patrol boats were attempting to tow her to the Setilly Islands.

Washington, May 3.—Secretary Bryan said that a thorough investigation would be made, but that before official reports were received the Washington government would make no comment.

CLAIMS MURPHY ASKED
AID FROM REPUBLICANS

By Associated Press.

Syracuse, N. Y., May 3.—That William Barnes told him Charles F. Murphy, of Tammany Hall, had asked for help in 1911 to defeat a direct primaries bill in the state legislature, and that the then chairman of the Republican State Committee had answered he would refuse the aid asked, and had remarked he would not pull the Tammany Hall leaders' "chestnuts from the fire," was the sworn testimony given in the Supreme Court here today by Walter T. Arndt, formerly Albany correspondent of a New York newspaper.

Mr. Arndt was one of several witnesses who were placed upon the stand by the defense. Among them was Edward T. Platt, son of the late Thomas C. Platt, former United States senator and described in previous testimony as the "easy boss."

Mr. Platt produced several bundles of musty letters taken from the files kept by his father from 1899 to 1909.

ON TRIAL FOR

By Associated Press.

Bellefontaine, O., May 3.—Mrs. Charles Bentz was placed on trial here today for the murder of a few weeks' old girl baby, which died in her home January 29, regarding the parenthood of which there is also a dispute.

Mrs. Bentz claims the child was her own, while the prosecution is supporting the claim of Mrs. Ruth Madden, that the child was hers, and was given to Mrs. Bentz, who had promised to find a home for it in Columbus.

The state will call medical experts, who are relied upon to testify that morphine was found in the child's stomach after death.

AMERICAN VESSEL HIT BY TORPEDO

London, May 3.—The American oil tank steamer Gulfight was torpedoed off the Scilly Islands by a German submarine. The vessel was towed into Crow sound and beached.

A fog prevailed at the time. The crew was transhipped to a trawler. Captain Alfred Gunter died of heart failure. Two members of the crew jumped and it is believed were drowned. One of the crew was injured. The Gulfight was sighted in a sinking condition. Four trawlers went to the rescue and brought the survivors to harbor.

The captain of the Gulfight was Alfred Gunter of Bayonne, N. J. Mrs. Gunter received a telegram from the refining company notifying her that the vessel had been struck by a torpedo and that her husband was dead. The Gulfight was a steel vessel of 3,202 tons net and was built at Camden, N. J., in 1914. She was owned by the Gulf Refining company. The vessel was 383 feet long, 51 feet beam and 30 feet deep. She was equipped with wireless telegraphy apparatus. The Gulfight sailed from Port Arthur, Tex., April 10, for Rouen, France. Captain Gunter was fifty-two years old and one of the oldest captains in employ of the company. He was born in Germany. Captain Gunter was commander of the steamship Oklahoma, which went down in a gale in January, 1914, off the New Jersey coast.

WASHINGTON IS CONCERNED

Washington, May 3.—Authorities here viewed with grave concern reports that the American oil ship Gulfight had been torpedoed by a German submarine off the Scilly Islands, south of England.

It had been the fear of officials that the German "war zone" operations would result in the sinking of an American ship by a German submarine. It now appears that not only was the vessel torpedoed, but according to information received here three American lives were lost as a result. The case of Leon C. Thrasher, the American who lost his life in the torpedoing of the British ship Falaba by the Germans, was regarded as in part raising the issue most feared as source of complications by this government. The present case apparently constitutes a much more serious offense, in that it combines not only an attack upon the American flag and the destruction of American property on the high seas, but also involves the loss of American lives.

Officials here declined to comment on the dispatches from London because they have not yet been confirmed by any official messages reaching the state department. It was pointed out that the matters involved are of too great consequence for official utterances based on reports which may subsequently prove to be either inaccurate or incomplete.

The vigorous note sent to Germany by the United States with reference to the proposed war zone operations affords, of course, the basis for the position the United States government may be expected to take in the matter.

FRANK WALSH MAKES REPLY

Cincinnati, May 3.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., charges he gave out private correspondence and that he did not have to give it up. I want to say that no correspondence that has to do with the breakdown of government is private." Thus Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the United States commission on industrial relations, replied to Mr. Rockefeller's "defense of himself." "New York city," Mr. Walsh said, "is the center of the potential power of the land. In that city is one man, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., the richest man of all time, whose more than a thousand millions pervade all the fields of industry. The Colorado situation is controlled from 26 Broadway, New York, the office of the Standard Oil company. The history of this situation is a history of the exploitation of labor and of bloodshed."

ROOSEVELT AND OTHERS CENSURED

New York, May 3.—Raps at those who are attempting to make political capital out of the military unpreparedness of the United States are contained in a letter sent out to members of the American league to limit armaments, in which they are asked to direct public attention to such efforts. Colonel Roosevelt and the navy league come in for censure. The letter says that the preparedness issue is undoubtedly used to further political ends.

New York, May 3.—Because she could not bear to kill herself at home, Mrs. Bessie Byfield of Indianapolis took a train to New York, went to the Park avenue hotel and committed suicide there by swallowing cyanide of potassium. Mrs. Byfield left two letters, one addressed to her mother and the other to her sister, both in Indianapolis, in which she declared that she had determined to do away with herself, but could not bear to do it near them. She asked that her body be cremated. Mrs. Byfield was formerly society editor of an Indianapolis paper.

TO INDORSE THE RAPID TRANSIT BILL

Columbus, May 3.—Business and professional men, merchants and labor leaders to the number of several hundred will arrive in this city tomorrow to urge with Governor Willis and the speaker and leaders of the lower branch of the general assembly passage of the Bauer bill, which provides for Cincinnati a rapid transit system and an entrance to the city for nine interurban roads.

Many of the Republican members are displeased at the action of the Hamilton county members in joining with the Democrats to defeat the Andrews saloon license bill. Some of the members talked of refusing to pass the rapid transit bill ahead of the new license bill to be introduced in the senate, but waiting to see whether the Cincinnatians stand with the Republicans in carrying out the party pledge to decentralize or whether they play with the Democrats.

It is claimed that the farmers don't want to register as voters, not even once. That turns out to be why the Wickline election code has languished in committee for ten days since the senate passed it. The bill abolishes annual and quadrennial registration of city voters, substituting a permanent card system. In order to start the system, one more general registration must be had. The village and rural voters were included by the bill because of the need of a complete list of Ohio voters, to whom the secretary of state is required to mail copies of explanations of initiative and referendum proposals. This would require the farmer to register, and thereafter to sign his name to a card when handed a ballot on election day. To save the registration part of the bill from the farmers probably it will be amended to leave them out and to provide only for a card system of registration in cities.

GOVERNOR WILLIS ON HIGHWAY WORK

Columbus, May 3.—Governor Willis joined the good roads boosters and issued a statement, urging greater activities in highway work. He also cautioned public officials not to neglect the $100,000,000 investment in improved roads, and urged that these be kept in condition by repair and maintenance. Closer co-operation among federal, state, county and township officials in road work also was advocated by the chief executive.

OHIO BRIEFS

Mrs. Brown Seeks Freedom.

Columbus, May 3.—Among the cases which will come before the parole board within a few weeks will be that of Mrs. Charlotta Thompson Brown, sent to Ohio penitentiary a little more than a year ago from Cincinnati, where she was convicted of charges of embezzlement, following the failure of the Thompson-Brown company, brokers, of which she was the head. Application for a parole has been made by Mrs. Brown.

Belmont County Still Dry.

Bellaire, O., May 3.—The county license commissioners announced that saloons would not be permitted to open in Bellaire, Martins Ferry and Bridgeport. The cause of this unexpected order is said to be the result of protests filed against some of the men who were granted licenses. The disappointed applicants for licenses charge irregularity in the commissioners' work.

DRUG FIENDS ARE FILLING N.Y. HOSPITALS

New York, May 3.—"An appalling situation, in which drug maniacs are allowed at large," is Ernest K. Coulter's characterization of the present state of affairs in New York city. Mr. Coulter was asked what ought to be done to handle the many cases of drug victims who, deprived of cocaine, heroin and other habit forming substances, are filling the city hospitals and prisons to the crippling point.

Worse than the strain on the hospitals and the overcrowding of the jails are the frequent deeds of violence in the effort to get drugs. In the last week there has hardly been a day when the newspapers have not chronicled attacks on shops or assaults on people by men crazed for the lack of drugs which they can no longer procure under the present law.

"I don't believe the people of the city realize the seriousness of the situation," said Mr. Coulter, who represented Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt in the long fight to suppress drug traffic in the city. "It must be understood that these men who rob, assault and slay to get morphine or some similar substance are insane. They are the most dangerous kind of lunatics when the craving comes over them. Now if the city can not deal with these people the lives of all of us are in constant peril. Drug victims come from every class of society. Aside from the danger of these roving lunatics in search of drugs, no one can be sure that his own brother won't get the habit. The introductions to drug using are too many and too deceptive for anyone to feel immune from danger. Private philanthropy is helpless before this problem; it is governmental."

EX-CONGRESSMAN LITTEFIELD DEAD

New York, May 3.—Former Congressman Charles E. Littlefield died at his home here. His death was due to embolism, the formation of a blood clot resulting from an operation which he underwent ten days ago. He was sixty-four years old. Since his resignation from congress in 1908 Mr. Littlefield had made New York city his home and had been practicing law here.

SEWS UP A MAN'S HEART

New York, May 3.—Dr. Charles Goodman, a visiting surgeon at the Beth Israel hospital, sewed three stitches in the lining of a man's heart and saved the patient's life. The man was Israel Seiff, a peddler. He was brought into the hospital in a dying condition as a result of accidentally plunging a knife through his lungs and into his heart. In order to stay the hemorrhage the man's chest had to be opened, and for this purpose a special apparatus was used to prevent the collapse of the lungs. Dr. Goodman did the sewing up of the heart while it was actively palpating. Stitches were also taken in the lungs.

May Day in Chicago

The coming of May day in Chicago found more than twenty thousand men—mechanics—out of work and the most distressing feature in connection with that unfavorable condition was that this vast army of men were voluntarily out of work. They refused to work because of some real or fancied grievance against men who were willing and anxious to employ them and pay them good wages.

This means, allowing five members to the family, which is the generally accepted average in estimating population, that there were, at least, a quarter of a million people, on May day in Chicago, who were compelled to undergo some hardship on account of being unemployed themselves or because those upon whom they depended for support, were not earning money with which to purchase the necessities of life.

It does seem strange that with all the multitude of laws that are being suggested and enacted in every state of the Union that no law yet has been suggested which gives promise of putting an end to the deplorable conditions such as are now existing in Chicago.

No legislator has yet sprung into prominence and deserved popularity by advocating a remedy for existing industrial evils. No man has yet even bid for fame, let alone attained it, by providing a method to get speedily at the truth in these never-ending disputes between laborers and their employers and administering a remedy which will prevent these strikes and lockouts.

Carpenters, mill men, sheet metal workers, lathers, painters and structural iron workers—thousands of them—refuse to work in Chicago.

Why?

Somebody is at fault for the existence of that condition.

It is a sad commentary on our boasted advance in legislation and judicial procedure that organized society has no remedy for such a malady.

Labor is not always to blame for the existence of such conditions; and neither is capital.

Always, however, it is one or the other and the one at fault in each particular case should be ascertained and made to do justice.

Frequently politics effectually clogs what feeble machinery is available for dealing with these situations.

May day brought work and with it trouble and turmoil and want to the men of Chicago who need work.

While a dispute which should be ended at once drags along in its slow course families are in want and necessary work remains undone.

The Use of Gas Bombs

Disregarding entirely, whether the allies or the Germans are primarily to blame for the use of bombs filled with suffocating gasses as a weapon of warfare either in defensive or offensive fighting, the fact that resort has been made by either or both warring factions is to be deplored by all civilized people.

The use of these deadly gas bombs which spread death in a horrible form to all within a wide radius of the spot where they explode is barbarous in the extreme.

Civilized people even when they, for the time, relapse to the barbarism of war for commercial or industrial prestige do not, as a rule, so far forget themselves as to be guilty of the commission of atrocities, in the name of war, which would be expected only of the fanatical Bedouin, the Hotentot or the American Indian.

The use of poisonous gas is on a plane with the spreading of disease germs, the mutilation of the wounded and the wanton butchery of innocent non-combatants.

It is barbarism made more horrible by the intelligence of civilization and Christian people should protest against the practice.

Nothing more cowardly can be imagined than this wholesale slaughter of brave soldiers by resort to methods which would shame the wild hordes of the dark continent.

Speeding Up Lawmakers

Governor Willis' threat that he will either hold the legislature in session until it enacts a real and substantial liquor license law "decentralizer" or call the legislative body back in extra session until such a law is enacted is proof positive that the chief executive of the state has at last been forced to an acknowledgment, if not a realization, that legislators need to be persuaded by the executive power.

The legislatures, owing to the fact that the component parts are subject to varied local influences are not so likely to act for the good of the whole state and to redeem campaign promises as the executive.

Governor Willis has also evidently awakened to the fact that it is he and not the legislature the people will blame for the acts of omission or commission by the legislature.

It is time that the Governor applied the accelerator to the legislature. He will be compelled to do so if the legislature does anything worth while before it adjourns.

The present condition is no surprise to the majority of the people.

Let the legislature alone sounds well but will not work out well.

Poetry For Today

WILD DUCKS.

I heard the wild ducks passing in the night,
From shadowy skies their call came dimly down,
And the soft magic of their yearning flight
Swept the dull spaces of the sleeping town.

Into my chamber came the breath of spring,
Pregnant with promise from awakening buds;
Into my heart came fancies, billowing
With the glad rhythm of sun-loosened floods.

I saw the wind-blown crocus on the hills,
With the fresh starring of anemones,
Heard the thin laughter that the brown brook trills
Under the shelter of low-stopping trees.

A car clanged distantly. Across the way
A drowsy watchman waked with sudden fright.
On the dim court a soft enchantment lay,
I heard the wild ducks passing in the night.

When a fellow is engaged to a girl he spends a lot of his nights going to court to prove that he loves her. And after he marries her he often spends a lot of his days going to court to prove that she does not love him.

The man who won't listen to reason is usually thinking the same thing about you.

The lad who is always telling you that banks are not safe is the same fellow who never has anything to put in them.

After all it isn't necessary for a woman to get married five times in order to look well groomed.

When a man hires a girl he wants to see her recommendations. But he isn't that particular when he marries a girl.

What has become of the old fashioned woman who used to carry eggs into town and swap them for snuff and calico?

When a boob gets up enough courage to propose to a girl she has to act surprised. But the truth of the matter is that she told all her girl friends about her engagement months before and has spent several weeks arguing with her mother about the proper date for the wedding.

During the first year of married life she pesters him to death by asking him if he still loves her, and he gets highly peeved every time she does it. But about ten years later he would give almost anything he has if she showed enough interest in him to ask him if he still loved her.

A woman is inclined to exaggerate everything but her age.

Faith may move mountains. But it isn't a bad idea to have a team of horses or an auto truck around if you want to deliver the goods.

Any old time a man gets up at a meeting and announces that he is merely going to make a few brief remarks, you can settle down and prepare for a two hour talk.

FRENCH ARE BOMBARDING METZ FORTS

Paris, May 3.—The French have established long range guns in the vicinity of their line at Pont-au-Mousson and are bombarding the southern fortifications at Metz which are about ten miles away. The gunfire, says the official communique, caused considerable damage at various points along the southern front of the entrenched camp at Metz, particularly in the case of one of the forts, probably Fort St. Blaise, and at the barracks and the nearby railway.

Metz is the site of one of Germany's most formidable fortifications. It consists of a series of single forts or units, which surround the city at various strategic points. Fort St. Blaise, which is the most southern in the chain, is about five miles from the center of the city and about ten miles from the nearest French trenches at Pont-a-Mousson. Nearby are the forts of Graf Haeseler and Wagner, either of which may have been the principal mark of the French bombardment.

The damage to the railway, if considerable, will be of the greatest concern to the German general staff, as it is this railway running south and west from Metz over which all supplies are carried to the apex of the German wedge at St. Mihiel and to the neighboring line of trenches.

The official report adds: "In the valley of the Aisne and in Champagne the enemy has tried various appliances of war, which have had no effect. Near Tracy Le Mont glass tubes, which on breaking spread fumes of ether, were used. Between Rheims and the Argonne, our enemy resorted to bombs loaded with inflammable substances. Finally a gas producing a heavy green smoke was employed, but it remained over the enemy's line and failed to reach our front."

Germans Advancing.

The Germans claim to have made an advance in their raid into the Russian Baltic provinces, and after defeating the Russians to have reached the region to the southwest of Mitau, which is well on the road to Riga, and if they are in strong force they should prove a serious menace to the Russian communications.

There has been no further bombardment of Dunkirk, which would seem to indicate that the Germans had only one big gun in position and that the French airmen have made it so uncomfortable for the gun crew that it has withdrawn. Along the rest of the western front attacks and counter attacks continue, but no battle of importance has developed out of them.

It appears that the Turkish report that the Asiatic shore of the Dardanelles is free of the invaders was correct.

TURKS DRIVE OUT FRENCH

London, May 3. — Ottoman troops, under the command of German officers directed by General Liman von Sanders, have cleared the Asiatic shores of the Dardanelles by a brilliant engagement lasting two days. Wireless reports from Athens announce that the 4,000 French soldiers, including the colonial veterans from northern Africa, have retired, after fighting stubbornly against superior numbers. The forts in the narrows were considerably damaged, but action of the fleet was hampered by mines, the clearing of any of which has been made difficult by the mobile Turkish batteries ashore.

GERMAN GUN HAS 23-MILE RANGE

Paris, May 3. — Information received from a deserter is to the effect that for about two months engineers of the Krupp gun works have been directing in the suburbs of Dismude the installation of a marine gun capable of firing a shell over a very long range. It is this gun which may have bombarded Dunkirk. The gun is believed to have a range of 23.5 miles. So states an official communication of the French war office.

THE RIDDLE OF THE GREEN UMBRELLA

BY HUGH C. WEIR

JURY FINDS WM. HOWARD GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

GRAND JURY IN SESSION

The May grand jury convened Monday morning with some eight or ten cases to be considered, and with 54 witnesses to be examined.

As usual when the grand jury assembles, the court house was a scene of unusual activity, with the witnesses scattered about everywhere and a number of on-lookers present about the court room.

Prosecutor Maddox has been busy preparing for the session, and the Howard murder trial resulted in a great deal of extra work the past two weeks.

The cases coming before the jury are of a widely varied nature, from charges of murder in the first degree down to abandonment.

The most important cases are: For murder in the first degree, John Denner and Jesse Denner; Cutting with intent to kill, Walter Norris, of Waterloo; Robbery, Willard Harper and DeWitt Tobin, of near Edgfield; Attempt to assault, John Briley, of Jeffersonville; Stealing, James Allen, of Jefferson township; Pointing firearms, Percy Pugsley, of near Milledgeville; Abandonment, Daniel Strait, of Paint township.

It is expected that the grand jury will not complete its work until sometime Tuesday. Much interest centers on the result of the investigation of the grand jury.

REPORT PROOF OF GOOD ACCOMPLISHED

That Miss Sutton, Welfare Association nurse, has had a strenuous month is plainly evidenced by the April report, and verifies rumors that she has been working day and night.

Nurse Miss Sutton reports 23 new cases, 18 of them medical. The report covers 8 medical cases cured; 4 improved; 1 sent to infirmary; 1 moved out of town and 3 dead. Fifty-six working visits made; instructive visits 80; friendly visits 35; miscellaneous visits 44; a total number of 215 visits.

There have been six operations under the nurse's direction, two adenoidomy and one tonsilotomy and one child examined and fitted for glasses.

Medical cases carried May 1 are 20. The association workers closely in touch with Miss Sutton realize more fully than outsiders the immense amount of good that is being done under her supervision and the transformation she is working in the homes of the poor, teaching methods of cleanliness and sanitation, and improving conditions in every way. Her work is already showing wonderful results, changing conditions of distress and suffering, into comfort; bringing health to the sick and finding employment for the idle.

ORGANIZATION OF BOY SCOUTS IS PROGRESSING

The re-forming of a boy scout organization in connection with the Y. M. C. A. is progressing well, according to an announcement made Monday by Secretary Patton of the Y. M. C. A., who has the project in charge.

Six boys have successfully passed the Tenderfoot tests and with two more, expected to be secured Monday or Tuesday, the organization of the first patrol will be accomplished. Besides the six passing the tests, about eight tried unsuccessfully, but these will be given another chance.

Mr. Patton is anxious to secure an efficient body and will adhere to the letter of the national tests. Other patrols will be formed as the work progresses, which will unite to form a troop.

SEEKING CLUSTER LIGHTS FOR CENTRAL PART OF CITY

FOUR PETITIONS, BEARING CLOSE TO 1,000 NAMES, TO BE PRESENTED AT MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL TONIGHT — SUGGESTIONS ACCOMPANY APPEAL.

Four petitions, bearing close to 1,000 names, seeking cluster lights in the central part of the city, will be presented to the city council at its session this evening.

The petitions were put into circulation Monday morning, and among the signatures secured are those of many of Washington's most prominent citizens.

The cluster light proposition is not a new one, but this is the first definite action taken on the part of the citizenry to secure the improvement.

The petitions include several suggestions as to disposal of the lights and read as follows:

"We, the undersigned, residents of the city of Washington C. H., Ohio, hereby request your honorable body to take such steps as will give us some of what is known as CLUSTER LIGHTS, now being used by so many cities of similar size and smaller than our own city.

"We suggest Cluster Lights for the following, to-wit:

"Court Street, from Hinde

street to intersection of Court street with Columbus and Washington avenues.

"Main street, from East street to Temple street.

"Fayette street, from East street to Market street.

"North street, from East street to Market street.

"Market street, from Hinde street to North street.

"However, these are only suggestions, but we ask that you give us as many Cluster Lights as your judgment indicates." Those in favor of the petition point, as an example, to London, O., which recently installed a mile and a half of these lights about its business section.

The petitions will be kept at the Cherry Hotel until council convenes, for the convenience of persons wishing to sign and who have had no opportunity to do so during the day.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Ringworm.

There are few diseases of the skin easier to cure than ringworm of nonhairy parts of the body. It is, however, difficult to cure ringworm of the scalp and beard—especially the former. The reason for the intractability of ringworm of the scalp and beard is that the fungus (a vegetable parasite, the trichophyton) grows down into the hair follicles, and it is very difficult to make well recognized antiparasitics penetrate to the seat of the trouble without damaging the skin. It requires easily six months to a year of treatment to cure ringworm on the scalp or beard. Any one suffering from ringworm should place himself under the observation of a physician or a specialist on diseases of the skin if he wants to be cured. A plain sulphur ointment of one dram of sulphur to an ounce of benzoated lard, a small portion rubbed into affected localities night and morning, will usually and steadily cure ringworm of the nonhairy localities.

PLEASING RECITAL BY YOUNG READER

The recital given by Miss Mary Hazel Post, reader, impersonator and monologist of Ohio University, at Wayne Hall, Good Hope, drew a representative audience from quite a surrounding radius Saturday night.

The charming young reader was well received and left a most favorable impression upon her audience. The humorous predominated in a number of entertaining readings. Her impersonation work was especially fine as the old man of Riley's poem, "Knee Deep in June," and the characters of "A Denominational Garden."

The program of readings was supplemented by musical numbers. Little Miss Margaret Alice Porter, who possesses an unusual voice for a child, gave a very taking song, Mrs. H. D. Cockerill accompanying her.

Runaway June

By GEORGE RANDOLPH
CHESTER and
LILLIAN CHESTER

Copyright, 1915, by Serial Publication Corporation

By special arrangement for this paper a photo-drama corresponding to the installments of "Runaway June" may now be seen at the leading moving picture theaters. By arrangement made with the Mutual Film corporation it is not only possible to read "Runaway June" each week, but also afterward to see moving pictures illustrating our story.

SYNOPSIS.

June, the bride of Ned Warner, impulsively leaves her husband on their honeymoon because she begins to realize that she must be entirely dependent on him for money. She desires to be independent.

June is pursued by Gilbert Blye, a wealthy married man. She escapes from his clutches with difficulty. Ned searches distractedly for June, and, learning of Blye's designs, vows vengeance on him. After many adventures June is rescued from river pirates by Durban, an artist, who uses her as a model for "The Spirit of the Marsh." Mrs. Durban becomes jealous and drives June out. She is kidnapped by Blye and Cunningham.

June is taken by Blye to the boarding house of Mrs. Russell. She escapes, gets a job sewing and engages a cheap room in a tenement. The failure of another woman's attempt to be independent and a home maker opens June's eyes. Blye finds June in the tenement.

FIFTEENTH EPISODE.

"At Last, My Love!"

CHAPTER I.

AT the moment that Blye met June Ned Warner was springing up the stairs, his jaws set and his fists clinched.

It was thus that Ned Warner had, after all his weary pursuit, found his bride—in the presence of Gilbert Blye! Behind Ned came the runaway June Warner's stern faced father and gentle faced mother; came Iris Blethering, June's bosom friend; Bobbie Blethering, husband of Iris; came Marie, June's high cheek boned maid, with her friend and admirer, Officer Dowd; came fat old black Aunt Debby, panting and out of breath and shrieking for her Miss June; came that handsome and energetic collier, Bouncer, leaping and barking and encouraging the excitement with all his canine might.

For only an instant Ned Warner stood nonplused before the door of the room; then he seized a chair, and, striding to the door, he swung the chair, while the others of the little throng, which had piled in after him, fell back.

Beyond the door the dark, handsome man with the black Vandyke had led

"The viper!" hissed Honoria Blye.

The beautiful little runaway bride to a heavy man with thick lidded eyes and a round head bristling with short hair. He sat in a chair, and in his hands was money. He rose as June was led up to him, and into her hands he thrust the money. Then he smiled at her, while Gilbert Blye stepped back, sauntering and stroking his black Vandyke with his long, lean white fingers.

June shrank from the fat hands which were about to be clasped upon her shoulders and from that wide thick smile upon the face of the heavy man and, laughing nervously, turned to Gilbert Blye, who bent his dark, handsome head above her and spoke to her in his low voice.

Crash!

The door splintered and gave way,

and through it burst the wild eyed Ned Warner, his jaw set and his fists clinched. For a second he stood bewildered by the strange light which flooded this large room; then, with an oath, he sprang for the black Vandyked man. He clutched his fingers around the throat and, with a savage roar, bore Gilbert Blye to the floor. The runaway bride uttered shriek after shriek.

At the door downstairs there stopped an electric coupe, driven by a sharp featured woman with a long nose and high arched brows. She jumped out, and from the dim hallway there came a short, thick man with a short, thick stub of a cigar in one corner of his mouth. It was the well known and justly famous private detective, Bill Wolf.

Iris and Father and Mother Moore Bent Forward Eagerly.

"Got him, Mrs. Blye!" he triumphantly hushed. "Your husband is right upstairs—with the girl!"

"The viper!" hissed Honoria Blye and dashed into the dim hallway. Bill Wolf caught her as she started up the stairs.

"Not so fast, madam!" he called and laid hold of her arm. "This way, please."

"But my husband! The girl, June!" "They're here all right, and they can't get away. Here's your pictures, ma'am, and here's your bill."

He handed her a large roll of paper and two photographs, one of Gilbert Blye and one of June Warner.

Upstairs there was a scene of wild confusion. The runaway bride, her mother, Iris Blethering and the vivacious Tommy Thomas were screaming in hysteria, while the heavy man with the thick eyelids and the man with the white mustache and Bobbie Blethering and half a dozen other men rushed upon the fiercely struggling men on the floor.

"My husband!" shrieked June. "My husband!" And she ran around and around the excited pack of scrambling men, followed by the leaping, barking Bouncer.

Into this tumultuous scene there rushed Marie and Officer Dowd and fat old black Aunt Debby just as Bobbie by main strength dragged from Gilbert Blye the maddened assailant who had sprung upon him.

Gilbert Blye rose feeling of his throat, and for a moment he contemplated Ned Warner with dazed bewilderment; then a flush of anger came into his cheeks, and his black eyes blazed.

"Let him go!" he yelled, and, thrusting the heavy Edwards out of his way, he made a mad rush for the man who had attempted to strangle him.

It was huge Officer Dowd who this time jumped in between the two furious combatants and, with the aid of half a dozen young men, prevented the desperate encounter which would have ensued.

"My husband!" sobbed June and tried to throw herself upon him, but he turned from her. "Ned! Mr. Blye!"

A hand was laid upon Ned's arm—Iris Blethering's. She had forced her way through the excited throng.

"Why, Ned!" she called, shaking his arm and looking at the eyes from which the light of reason seemed to have fled. "Ned, listen to me. It's Iris! Don't you see? This is a motion picture studio!"

They all had to repeat it again and again before they could reach his dazed intelligence. He had seen but two objects in all this huge room, crowded with its moving picture machines, its properties, its scenery, its banks of strange lights, and those two objects had been his runaway bride and Gilbert Blye.

June! She stood now supported by her father and mother, her large, lustrous eyes turned appealingly on Ned, waiting the moment when she dared approach him again.

"Don't you understand, Ned?" she frantically cried. "Won't you understand? It's a motion picture play!"

Slowly he turned his glassy eyes in her direction. He comprehended at last, but there was no softening in his face, for there still stood the dark, handsome Gilbert Blye. Ned made a sudden lunge for his enemy, but Officer Dowd, watching him narrowly, stopped him.

"You have been with that man ever since you left me!" savagely charged Ned, turning suddenly toward the trembling June and shaking his finger at her.

In the abandoned bank room below Bill Wolf stood near a dusty window with Honoria Blye and rolled out before her a bill, yards long, covering all the separate items of his sleuthing on the trail of Gilbert Blye and June Warner.

"Go over the list, ma'am, item by item," confidently invited the faithful detective. "You'll find them correct. And here's a check on your own bank, all ready and made out for you to sign, and here's a fountain pen, ma'am."

Honoria Blye took the long list and began to check it off, item by item.

In the studio above a score of indignant eyes turned on Ned Warner, and there was a loud chorus of protest as he pointed accusingly at his unhappy runaway bride.

"What do you mean?" demanded the cold, stern voice of Gilbert Blye, and he advanced, his black eyes glowing. "This girl has done no wrong!"

They all talked at once, and they all talked indignantly at Ned Warner—Tommy Thomas, the white mustached Orin Cunningham, the round headed Edwards, Marie, Officer Dowd, Bobbie and Iris Blethering and all the camera men and members of the Blye Stock company. According to them, June Warner was the sweetest and best little wife any man dared wish for, and if Ned Warner chose to criticize her in any way he would have to answer to every person here, including fat old black Aunt Debby, who breast straight up to him, waddling her voluminous self defiantly from side to side.

"Looky hyah, you, Mr. Ned!" she dared, and Bouncer, who had been rushing around the separated bride and groom, stopped to bark ferociously up at Ned. "Ain't that Marie been with our honey ever since she done come an' got her clothes? Ain't you got no gumption? Why, looky hyah, if you say a word about our Miss June I'll jest about squash you!"

Iris and Father and Mother Moore bent forward eagerly toward Ned, and all smiled reassuringly. Then father Moore turned to June.

"My daughter," he said, "come home."

Mother and daughter wept in each other's arms.

CHAPTER II.

NED! It was a pathetic little figure which turned appealingly to the scowling young man. Her big eyes were full of tears. "It was all a mistake, dear!"

She choked back her tears, and there was a tense silence, in which Ned Warner stood with cold eyes and folded arms waiting.

"Oh, Ned, can't I make you see and understand?" And there was a piteous wistfulness about her. "We were all so happy on that day of our wedding, so happy as we started on our honeymoon trip! And when we stood alone in the Pullman drawing room, surrounded by our white ribboned baggage, there seemed to be no cloud in our sky!"

"Then why did you leave me?" Ned Warner's voice was harsh.

"It was the money!" Her lip trembled. "Don't you remember when I missed my purse? The porter came in just then, and you gave him a dollar. When he went out you gave me $30 and in just the same generous way you gave it to the negro. The difference was $29."

They were all startled by the force of the comparison. Only Gilbert Blye smiled, and the smile did not escape Ned.

"Do you remember I cried and you put my head on your shoulder? You thought I was tired, but I cried from humiliation. I felt like a beggar. I realized that for the rest of my life I would have to accept gifts of money from you. Then I dreamed about it. I dreamed that I was a piteous little beggar, always holding out my palms for alms; that I was receiving pay for being your wife just as mother paid Aunt Debby and Marie." Both Aunt Debby and Marie sniffed sympathetically. "And last of all I dreamed that I was being dragged home from the altar by a ring in the nose as the savages of old dragged home their brides. And when the train stopped and woke me up I couldn't stand it. I threw down your money and ran from the train."

"To meet this man!" interrupted Ned sternly. "Gilbert Blye was waiting on the station platform at Tarnville." And he noted that June looked at him in surprise.

"Hold on there!" Gilbert Blye spoke sharply. "I was waiting, but for a New York train. I had been to our Tarnville factory. I saw this beautiful girl on the platform and thought immediately what a good motion picture subject she would be. I was right. She screens perfectly." And he smiled approvingly at June.

"So you were strangers," remarked Ned, and there was an implied sneer in his tone. "You helped her on the train, and I saw you in the car talking with her!"

"You?" Both the runaway bride and the dark, handsome Blye asked that question.

"Yes, I!" this triumphantly. "I caught an express and overtook your local as we pulled into the station at New York, and through the car windows I saw you bending over her and smiling, and she was smiling up at you!"

There was a pause, and the listeners looked from June to Blye and then at Ned.

"Oh, yes!" and June's brow cleared. "I had sold my watch to a funny old lady on the train to pay my fare. Mr. Blye bought the watch from her and very kindly offered to let me repurchase it whenever I found it convenient. He gave me his card; that was all."

"All?" Ned thundered. "He chased you from the train in a taxi, and I followed, but I lost you both!"

"I did not!" Blye heatedly retorted. "I jumped in a taxi and tore straight for Cunningham's hotel, and he turned to the white mustached man for corroboration. 'We were due at a dinner party that night and were to stop at Mrs. Russell's, where all the girls of the company afterward boarded.'"

"And I went straight to Iris!" added the aggrieved June.

"Indeed she did!" heartily agreed Iris. "She told us she had left you because you had given her money." And Bobbie Blethering was still profoundly perplexed.

"You remember I came out to the house for June's purse." Iris turned to Mr. and Mrs. Moore. "She wouldn't even let us lend her money, because she had a principle about being independent. When you and Ned chased in and drove poor June from our house and Ned found Gilbert Blye's card in her glove, then it was all off!"

"When I slipped out of Iris' window I had my purse, but no clothes," June pathetically remembered. "So I went out home to Brynport and stole my clothes and Marie."

"Why did he go to Brynport at the same time?" Ned glared savagely at Blye.

"It was an inspiration," Gilbert Blye smiled suavely and stroked his black Vandyke with his long, lean white fingers, and his black eyes glowed. "We had just formed the Blye Stock company at the dinner party. Mr. Edwards," and he nodded to the heavy man with the thick lidded eyes, "is our financial backer. Mr. Cunningham," a nod for the white mustached man, "is our leading actor, who has also an interest in the company. I showed them the picture of the beautiful girl in the watch. It had given me a great idea for a motion picture play, 'The Runaway Bride.' They were delighted with it, but we had no girl of the type."

"Wasn't it the jealous little party?" laughed Tommy Thomas. "I was to be the only leading lady of the Blye Stock company."

Gilbert Blye favored the vivacious brunette with a pinch on the ear.

"I remembered hearing Mrs. Warner tell the old lady on the train that she must earn her own living. I was certain that she would screen well. Why not get the original heroine of the idea? Edwards and Cunningham were enthusiastic. I had her address in her watch. I jumped in Cunningham's limousine and hurried right out to Brynport."

"And we reached the cafe just in time to chase you," Bobbie Blethering was beaming with eager interest. He was piecing together a puzzle which had baffled him. "When Ned found your card we went to your house, and your wife told us you were at the dinner party."

"My wife," and a shade of annoyance passed over Blye's dark, handsome face.

"And on the way in from Brynport my taxi broke down," June went on. "Mr. Blye appeared out of the darkness as if by magic and offered his limousine."

"I have a confession to make," interrupted Blye. "I threw glass on the road." And there was a general movement of shocked understanding. All their ears had popped tires on that glass. "It was my only opportunity to stop the runaway bride. On the way in to the city I persuaded her that she could earn her independence easier and quicker in moving picture work than in any other way."

"So I became a temporary member of the Blye Stock company. I was to play the lead in the feature which he elaborated after I told him about my money problem."

"That was a great idea!" Blye was very enthusiastic. "The man, the woman and the money! It will appeal to every class and condition of people."

"I was to be the only leading lady."

We're spending a fortune in advertising it. Look at this new twenty-four sheet poster." And, moving a piece of scenery, he displayed a big lithograph of "The Runaway Bride," by Gilbert Blye; Portrayed by the Blye Stock Company."

Ned Warner was the only one who paid no attention to the lithograph. His arms were still folded; his eyes were still cold. June looked at him, and her eyes flared with despair.

"Why was it necessary to bind and gag me and leave me all night in the woods?" the husband demanded.

"Ned, what do you mean? Did some one do that to you?" June was half sobbing, and there was general surprise on the part of the Blye Stock company.

"Oh, Miss June, I didn't mean it to go so far!" the high cheek boned maid, Marie, cried, and she was pulling her thumbs in rapid succession while Aunt Debby glared ferociously at her.

"You!" June cried. "Why, Marie!"

And she looked in fright at Ned. There was a sneer on his lips.

"Well, Bouncer found Mr. Ned in Mrs. Villard's garden, and I knew you were hiding from Mr. Ned until you could make some money, so I told the chauffeur and the gardener not to let Mr. Ned see you or speak to you, and the next thing I knew Mr. Ned was gone."

He glared at Marie and June's heart sank. He shrugged his shoulders, as if dismissing Marie's narrative.

"I saw no cameras at Mrs. Villard's that night." And now he turned scowlingly to Orin Cunningham. "Yet I saw this man distinctly making love to my wife. And I saw Gilbert Blye doing the same thing!"

"We were rehearsing Mr. Warner," explained Blye quietly.

"Yes, Ned!" June was crying, but though Ned saw her, he paid no attention to her.

"We were to take the actual picture the next morning in the studio, and we were working out some scenes. It may help you if I tell you that Mr. Cunningham is the pursuing villain in 'The Runaway Bride.' I have been directing the pictures. I have taken the liberty several times of showing Mr. Cunningham how I wished scenes enacted. I also play the deserted groom." And his black eyes flashed.

Ned laughed, but there was no mirth in it. June shrank under his contemptuous gaze, and her mother patted gently the hand which lay in her arm.

"I'll swear it was not a moving picture rehearsal the night you dragged my wife out of the New York cafe and took her on board your yacht."

"You bet it wasn't." It was the heavy T. J. Edwards, and he was bobbing his round head vigorously.

"A contract is a contract. When your wife saw you she wouldn't go on board the yacht; she wouldn't finish the pictures; she couldn't do anything. My heavens, man, do you know I had already spent $75,000 on this feature? And if this girl quit we couldn't get another one to take her place, could we? So we dragged her on board the yacht." And he glared his defiance at all of them. Money was money.

Ned Warner had been sitting on the edge of a table. Now he sprang to his feet, and his eyes flamed. He caught his wife by the wrist and pulled her away from her mother.

"Here's one thing you can't explain," He dropped her wrist, and she stood swaying with half closed eyes, but there was no mercy in him. "I saw you rush from a house in a filmy stage costume."

There was a strained tensi in the group which surrounded them. John Moore started to come to his daughter, but Ned fiercely waved him back. "It was moving picture work. Very well. But tell me this—how could any girl who could not endure the humiliation of accepting money from her husband consent to appear on the street for any purpose in such a costume?"

There was a deathlike stillness among them, broken by a wild sobbing from the little runaway bride.

"Ned!" she cried. "Oh, Ned!" And she clung upon his arm. He held coldly rigid. "Forgive me! You can't know how I've suffered! You can't know how I've loathed it all! I was so mistaken, so wrong! I thought I had such a wonderful ideal. When I had achieved my independence, when I need no longer look to you for money, I was to return to you, and we were to walk hand in hand through life in that love which can be founded only upon mutual respect, which asks love for love and nothing more. I meant our love to be without a flaw. No man can understand the hurt to a woman when after marriage she becomes absolutely dependent on his charity."

"Why, June!" The small, mild voice of Mrs. Moore, and she stepped forward with deep concern on her gentle face. "What is all this talk about a husband's charity?" And she turned with wonder to Father Moore. "A husband makes only one gift to his wife, and that is at the altar. After that everything he has is hers, if people will only remember the marriage service. Your ring is a symbol of it. 'With all my worldly goods I thee endow.'"

Gilbert Blye clutched his black Vandyke and looked at the ceiling; then he smiled suavely.

"That's a great idea! I'll work it into the feature!" But no one heard him. There was an audible snifle from Iris Blethering, and Tommy Thomas was looking intensely sentimental.

"And you, my son!" She turned with surprising severity on Ned Warner. "Have you forgotten that you promised to love, cherish and protect my daughter?"

There was a cry from the little runaway bride and a sob from Ned Warner as, oblivious to all around them, they clasped each other in a solemn embrace.

From that loving clasp the beautiful wife of Ned Warner raised a radiantly happy countenance to her mother.

"And I have no problem," she laughed, and then she cried. And Iris Blethering and Tommy Thomas sobbed together and formed a lasting friendship.

And everybody was happy, including Marie and Officer Dowd, who had become conscious at the mention of the marriage service, and Aunt Debby, who was praising her Redeemer in an unconsciously audible voice, and Bouncer, who was leaping and barking indiscriminately for the benefit of everybody and anybody.

"Where are they? Where are they?" screamed a shrill voice, and Honoria Blye burst into the group.

Gilbert Blye walked serenely over to meet her.

"You may go home to your parrot, Honoria," he advised her quite happily. Then there came a cold sobriety in his black eyes. "You can't interfere with my business this time, as you have done ever since we were married, and you can no longer assume a dominance over me with your money." Suddenly the glow returned to his black eyes, and he looked to June and smiled his suave smile. "I have worked out my independence."

CHAPTER III.

THERE was a gay supper party at the New York cafe that night. The Blye Stock company entertained their departing star and her friends. Ned Warner sat beside his happy June. There seemed an extra affection tonight between Father and Mother Moore and Bobbie and Iris Blethering, and Tommy Thomas was the gayest of the gay. The eyes of the white mustached Orin Cunningham twinkled incessantly, and heavy T. J. Edwards sat with a smile of intense satisfaction on his thick lips. The feature was finished with out an accident, and the first of the films was fine. Bobbie Blethering and Blye took an instant liking to one another. The old feud was entirely forgotten.

"They're good people, Ned," whispered the happy June. "And they were so good to me!"

Ned beamed down at June with delight in every inflection of her voice, in every turn of her beautiful head, in every fleeting expression of her lovely countenance, in every glance of her lustrous eyes. Quite forgotten was all the tearing strain of these past days; quite gone were all his bitterness and hate.

In her wedding gown, which she had donned once again, June was a vision of beauty.

Up rose Gilbert Blye at the head of the table. In his hand he held a small shining object. He made a wonderful speech about it, a speech full of wit and sentiment and good will and things which made everybody happy, and with an extraordinary flourish of words he presented that watch to the little runaway bride.

Amid whacking applause the little runaway bride made a blushing speech of acceptance; then there was a whispered consultation between herself and the deserted groom, begun by a suggestion from the latter. Then up rose the beaming Ned Warner and made a manly speech, a generous speech, a speech full of heart bursting happiness, and amid great applause he presented that tiny watch to the dark, handsome, black Vandyked Gilbert Blye.

Then up rose Bobbie Blethering and looked at the clock and motioned to the head waiter.

"Well, it's train time," he proudly announced.

Two of the party looked up in perplexity. Every one else was grinning. "Goodbye, June, dear!" And Iris Blethering, jumping from her chair, threw her arms around June's neck and sobbed happily.

"Here are your tickets, Ned," called smiling eyed Father Moore, tossing over an envelope, and at that moment the doors of the private dining room opened, and in marched Aunt Debby and Marie laden with white ribboned honeymoon luggage. June's mother was at the farewell dinner, and she smiled with Father Moore at the thought that the happy couple did not know that on the back of the Moore card which was to take them to the railroad station to finish their uncompleted honeymoon was this legend: "JUST MARRIED."

Aunt Debby led the way with the bride and groom as they started to leave.

Bouncer leaped up as the rice began to shower upon the embarrassed bride, and Mother Moore leaned far across and whispered:

"June, dear, don't forget your purse."

THE END.

It Made a Change.

"Do you find the air of this neighborhood salubrious?" asked the new arrival.

"Not any more," replied the oldest inhabitant. "There has been a big improvement since they moved the glass factory to the other side of the country."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

PRESIDENT IS SPONSOR

Williamstown, Mass., May 3.—In St. John's Episcopal church President Wilson became one of the sponsors for his grandson here yesterday. Rev. J. Franklin Carter, the pastor of the church, conducted the ceremony, using the regular Episcopal service. Contrary to the expectations of outsiders, the president's grandson was christened Francis Woodrow Sayre. Only the immediate members of the family and a few close friends of the Sayre family attended the baptism. President Wilson left behind him as a gift for Francis Woodrow Sayre a ball and bat.

GOVERNOR WILLIS.

Ohio's Chief Executive Joins Good Roads Boosters.

Carthage and Rome was the fact that the peoples of these several nations were so situated as to secure better methods of travel and transportation than were vouchsafed to others.

Roads a Vital Issue.

"As towns were built and roads constructed civilization spread. Even now in various parts of Europe the old Roman roads remain mute monuments of the far-sighted genius of their builders. The question of improved public highways is now more than ever an important one. Better means of transportation is a necessity for the progress and self-preservation of our present day civilization.

"Unfortunately, in the construction of highways thus far in this country there has been too little 'co-operation among different authorities.' In the future there must be closer relationship between the federal government, state authorities and local authorities in the construction of roads.

"In the state of Ohio, co-operation between the state highway department, the counties and the townships in the construction, repair and maintenance of the public roads of the state will give a great impetus to better road building and also to the equally important questions of maintenance and repair.

"Under the system which has thus far been followed in Ohio too little attention has been given to these latter elements. It is certainly poor business method to expend thousands of dollars in the construction of roads and then allow them to go into decay when the expenditure of a comparatively small amount would keep them in repair. A little defect in the surface of a highway if not attended to promptly will soon become a serious defect and ultimately will result in the destruction of the usefulness of the highway.

"Crime to Neglect Roads.

"Improvement and maintenance must not be neglected by our state, county and township officials. The work which has already been done at the cost of a vast sum of money must not be allowed to depreciate through neglect. It should be brought constantly to the attention of those charged with the duty of building and maintaining highways that the preservation of these highways through proper repair and maintenance is as important as the construction of new lines of transportation. It would be little short of a crime to allow the millions of dollars already expended in road building to be wasted through lack of proper attention.

"Nothing in nature or in human construction is permanent. The construction of roads should be under supervision of the best informed engineers. The law should provide an efficient system of co-operation among state, county and township authorities, to the end that a better system of highways may be constructed and that the vast amount of the taxpayers' money already invested in improved roads shall be preserved through proper repair and maintenance.

"The price of commodities paid by the consumer is influenced in no small degree by the cost of transportation. Investigations which have been made by the United States department of agriculture show that on the average the producer's price is only about 47 per cent of the price paid by the consumer. The investigations thus carefully made indicate, for example, that the producer of oranges gets only about 20 per cent of the price paid by the consumer. The man who raises onions gets 28 per cent of the consumer's price. The man who buys a quart of strawberries sees 51 per cent of the amount paid by him go to the factors other than the producer.

Lowers Living Cost.

"Of course it is understood that a large proportion of this is perfectly legitimate expense for transportation, distribution, etc. Nevertheless it must be evident that as the cost of transportation is reduced the producer and the consumer are brought relatively closer together and both profit thereby.

"The constant growth of our towns and cities has increased the demand for farm products. This must be supplied by greater production, and by bringing the consumer in closer touch with the producer through improved methods of transportation. Where roads are poor farm products are usually high in the surrounding towns and cities. Fruit may be rotting on the ground in the orchards of the country, yet ten miles away people are hungry for this same fruit, but can not get it in many instances through the lack of proper facilities for transportation and distribution.

"A mud hole, the bad road and the high cost of living usually go together. Let us eliminate all of these undesirable features by constructing better roads and by keeping them in repair after they are constructed."

Former Congressman Ralph Cole, a power in state and national Republican politics, declared in favor of a national appropriation of $25,000,000 by Uncle Sam, to be distributed among the different states and used by them in the building of improved roads.

"To say that I am in favor of co-operation by the federal government with the states in the construction, repair, and maintenance of public roads is not new for me, for while a member of congress both by vote and in speeches on the floor of the house I declared my position on this great question," said former Congressman Cole.

"I have long believed that congress had as much right to appropriate money and co-operate with the states in the construction of public roads as it had to appropriate millions of dollars and give away millions of acres of public lands in aid of the construction of railroads from the Mississippi river to the Pacific coast. Congress has as much right to appropriate money for public roads in the states as it had to appropriate $2,000,000 to road construction in the Philippine Islands; $2,000,000 in aid of the construction of roads in Porto Rico; $1,400,000 in aid of the construction of miners' trails in Alaska; $1,300,000 for the construction of public roads in the canal zone, and $87,000 for the construction of public roads in the Island of Guam, which is so small in area that it takes a magnifying glass to find it in the Pacific ocean.

Build Roads at Home.

"Just at this time and in this connection the attention of the taxpayers of the country should be called to the fact that congress has as much right to appropriate money for the construction of public roads in the states and thereby benefit the people of the forty-eight states as it had to appropriate $25,000,000 to the construction of a steam road in Alaska.

"I favor an annual appropriation by congress of at least $25,000,000 for co-operation with the states in the construction of public roads, and think that the best plan for the distribution of such an annual appropriation to the states is on a basis of one-half each for population and star and rural route mileage. For congress to make an annual appropriation of $25,000,000 and apportion it to the states upon this basis will bring to Ohio from the federal treasury $1,152,800 annually, and it is a queer coincidence just at this time that this is the amount State Highway Commissioner Cowen needs to carry out the promises heretofore made and to meet the requests which have been filed in his office for main market road money."

NAVAL BATTLE IN NORTH SEA

London, May 3.—The British admiralty makes the following announcement:

"A series of small affairs took place in the neighborhood of the Galloper and North Hinder lightships. The British destroyer Recruit was sunk by a submarine. Four officers and twenty-one men were saved by the trawler Daisy. The trawler Colombia was sunk by two German torpedo boats from the westward, only one deckhand being saved. A division of British destroyers chased the Germans. An hour's running fight ensued, and both the German torpedo boats were sunk. The British suffered no casualties. Two German officers and forty-four men were rescued and made prisoners."

The two lightships named are roughly on a line drawn between Harwich on the Essex coast and Ostende on the Belgian coast, the Galloper being some thirty miles off Harwich, while the North Hinder lightship is about the same distance off the Belgian coast.

TURKS DECLARE ALLIES REPULSED

Berlin, May 3.—The Turkish war office at Constantinople issued the following official statement: "On the evening of May 1 the left wing of the enemy was attacked by us several times from positions near Gaba Tebeh and was driven back in a northerly direction towards Arburnau. May 2 the enemy attempted to advance in order to avoid the effective flank fire of our artillery, but was driven back to the old positions on the coast by a bayonet attack. We have captured two machine guns and all material and ammunition landed by the enemy near Sedd El Behr. By reason of our artillery fire the enemy is in an untenable position. The allied warships are taking no action against the fortifications in the straits."

NOTED G. A. R. ORATOR TO SPEAK HERE

It has been the custom of the Epworth League to entertain the G. A. R. and its auxiliary organizations with a memorial entertainment on some evening during the week preceding Decoration Day.

This year the league is planning an entertainment quite out of the ordinary and has engaged Past State G. A. R. Commander Charles W. Blodgett to deliver an address on the evening of Wednesday, May 26th. The address will be in the nature of an eulogy to the late Col. B. H. Millikan, the late Post Commander George F. Robinson and other G. A. R. comrades with whom Col. Blodgett had been in connection.

Col. Blodgett is recognized as an orator unsurpassed and his address will be one of the finest ever given in this city.

GOOD WORK AT RECITAL

A very interesting recital was given at Conservatory Hall Saturday afternoon by Misses Helen McKee, Mary Baughn, Margaret Schneider and Gertrude Miller.

Miss Schneider played Geig's "To the Spring," and "By Moonlight." Bendel. The latter was especially well rendered, showing the player's delicate touch.

Miss McKee's numbers were Sullak Octave Etude and "Segmunds Love Song"—Wagner. The Wagner number showed in every way a brilliant piece of work.

Miss Baughn contributed another Octave Etude Sullak, and a Chapin Mazurka played with splendid effect. This young pianist has that strength in tone production that is necessary in concert work.

Miss Miller was exceedingly good in a McDowell number "Elfin Land." The faculty was much pleased with the progress shown by the young ladies.

LOCALS LOSE TO JACK PFEISTER

THIRD GAME OF SEASON RESULTS IN SMALL DEFEAT FOR ATHLETICS — RENO NOT UP TO FORM AND GENERAL FIELDING OF LOCALS BELOW STANDARD, ALTHOUGH FAR BETTER THAN THAT OF THEIR ADVERSARIES—SCORE 5 TO 3—ORIGINAL IBOLDS OF CINCINNATI NEXT SUNDAY.

Jack Pfeister, ex-twirler of the Chicago Cubs, assisted by a third baseman and a center fielder, Sunday defeated the Athletics in a close 5 to 3 game at Athletic park. The trio represented the Branch Hill Exhibition team of Hills Center, O., and was complemented by a very ordinary set of back lot fielders.

An odd feature of the Hilligan lineup was that its real ball players were all named Jack, and led one grandstand comedian to the opinion that the "pack" consisted of "jacks and jokers."

Reno was far from usual form and in four innings failed to control the horsehide. The Hilligans were allowed to walk frequently and those that did not walk, hit freely. Cotterill took the slab in the fifth and pitched good ball the rest of the game.

Pfeister Had 'Em Guessing.

Pfeister was the big work for the visitors. The old timer demonstrated that he had not lost all of his former ability at the slab, and in the opening innings held the Athletics in a stage fright. In the fourth the locals began to find the ex-phenom and slid two around the route, adding another in the fifth. Pfeister then settled down to a splendid exhibition of twirling, holding the Athletics to goose eggs the remainder of the game.

Outside of Pfeister and the two players mentioned the Hill Center bunch was nothing more than a school kid team. Their errors were rank and plentiful and the first baseman, after missing every chance, was taken out of the game in the fifth.

On the Washington lineup, Jones, Mobley and Noon performed in faultless style in the gardens. Corwin was the bright star of the infield. Reed played a good game at third and wielded the stick to good advantage.

Next Sunday the Original Ibolds, a fast Queen City organization without a 1915 defeat on its record, play here.

Sunday's game by innings follows:

CONCRETE MIXER NOW IN OPERATION

The concrete mixer was put to work on North street Monday morning, laying the foundation or base for the brick paving.

The work was started at the Library corner, and will be carried northward as rapidly as possible.

Meanwhile it will be necessary for vehicles to detour from the Jeffersonville pike at the corporation line, by way of the old stove factory and down to Court street to cross north street.

GOT THE TRAIN STOPPED.

Two Attempts. Were Dismal Failures, but the Third Won.

When the late Robert Bonner purchased Maud's he sent her to Charles Oak park to be trained. One day a friend of Mr. Bonner left New York to visit him at the park, but found that the train did not stop at that station. The conductor was polite, but said that he could not go against orders.

At New Haven a halt was made and Mr. Bonner's friend tried to bribe the engineer with a ten dollar bill, but in vain. He was then told that Charles P. Clark, the president of the road, was on the train, and he went to him and politely requested that the stop be made.

"Why don't you see the conductor?" asked Mr. Clark.

"I have, but he will not disobey orders."

"Why not then go forward and bribe the engineer?"

"I tried bribery at New Haven, but it would not work."

The absence of evasion was the best policy. Mr. Clark not only gave orders to have the train stopped at Charles Oak, but promised some day to see Maud S. He had witnessed the attempt at bribery, and the frank confession of the offense seemed to please him.

BIG NAVAL GUNS.

Death at Times Comes From Merely Serving Them in Battle.

Modern naval engagements demonstrate that the gunners sometimes die after the battle, even when they have not been wounded or injured in any way. Death is caused by disturbance of the circulation due to the strain placed upon the nervous system by the excitement and the tremendous vibrations of modern guns.

Curiously enough, this collapse is quite as likely to affect the most robust members of the gun crew as the ones with poorer physiques and bears no relation to the individual's courage.

It is due to a lack of sufficient reserve power of the heart, which is dependent upon the quality of the heart muscles, and there is no known means of estimating this latent quality exactly.

It is possible, of course, to determine the force and strength of the heart in an individual, but only some test, such as that of actual battle, will determine the quality of the heart muscles.

Thus the veteran gunner who has proved his heart quality in actual battle has become a peculiarly valuable factor in modern naval warfare.—Los Angeles Times.

They are getting so gay again in Wall street that seats on the Stock Exchange that were selling a little while ago for $35,000 have been bid up to $70,000. Still, a trifle like that can be made in a few minutes' operations—sometimes.—Philadelphia Press.

QUARREL OVER SPILLED FLOUR CAUSES MURDER

Ross county experienced another murder Saturday evening, when Lewis Cox, while intoxicated, shot and instantly killed his father-in-law, James Tillet, aged 53 years, at their home about five miles south of South Salem.

The trouble which ended in the tragedy was over some flour which Tillet had spilled upon the floor, it is claimed, and Cox seized a shot gun and opened fire upon the older man, at close range.

The contents of the shot gun penetrated the right side of Tillet's neck, tearing a horrible wound in his throat and severing the jugular vein and the spinal column.

Soon after the affray Cox was placed under arrest and taken to the Ross county jail to answer to a charge of murder, while the remains of Tillet, after being viewed by the coroner of Ross county, were removed to the undertaking establishment of J. M. Murray, of Greenfield, and prepared for burial.

Funeral services were held in the South Salem Presbyterian church Monday afternoon, and interment was made at South Salem.

The crime is one of the worst committed in the South Salem locality in a great many years.

The deceased was a distant relative of Mr. John Tillet, residing three miles south of this city.
